Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo stars

Western movie and singing stars Roy Rogers and Dale Evans are the stars of the 1973 Sikeston Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo. Roy and Dale will appear at each performance of the rodeo from August 9 through 12.

Roy Rogers signs for rodeo

Roy Rogers and Dale Evans, King and Queen of the west have signed to appear at each performance of the 1973 Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo in Sikeston, Aug. 9-12, Larry Miller, 1973 rodeo chairman, announced today.

Also appearing with Rogers and Miss Evans will be Dusty Rogers, Jr., the only natural son of Rogers, and the well- known country and western vocal group, the Sons of the Pioneers.

Holding more box office records in rodeo and state fair appearances than any team in the entertainment industry, Rogers and Miss Evans remain in high demand. Guest appearances on television programs, starring in state fairs and rodeos, plus devoting additional time such projects as Roy Rogers Family Restaurants, and the Roy Rogers Museum, are a few of the activities in their busy life.

Rogers was named "Honorary American Indian of the Year" by the American Indian Exposition, being a member of the Choctaw tribe.

Rogers drew the largest attendance in the exposition's history. In 1967 Miss Evans was named "California Mother of the Year."

Rogers recently received the Pioneer Award from the manufacturers of Western products in acknowledgment and appreciation for his contribution to western life.

The pair have signed the 155- year- old- American Bible Society's Christmas letter for the past several years and the number circulated has risen from 51 million the first year they signed the letter to 132 million in 1971, proving their ever- increasing popularity with the public. Rogers and Miss Evans were made honorary life members of the society in 1970, being the only stars from the entertainment industry to ever be honored.

Voted into Madison Square Garden's Hall of Fame, Rogers set an all- time one- day record there bringing $119,000 through the box office. Rogers and Miss Evans hold nine all- time box office records at the famed Houston Rodeo, including the largest crowd ever to see an indoor rodeo--42,884 people in one performance at the Astrodome.

Rogers was selected by the Round Table International as Honorary Knight for Life and Miss Evans as a Lady of Camelot. The citation, bestowed only 18 times previously in 30 years and never before to show business personalities, recognized them for distinguished service to humanity and to their country in the field of clean entertainment, of unselfish and effective leadership in service of homeless and orphaned children, and to the mentally retarded, and as volunteer entertainers to the armed forces.

Dale and Roy are well known for their adoption of orphans and for more than 5,000 charitable appearances. They are the only show business couple to receive a national citation from the American Legion. Other awards include one to Miss Evans as "Woman of the World" from International Orphans, Inc. and "Church Woman of the Year" from Religious Heritage of America.

Rogers has starred in 90 feature motion pictures, many of them with Miss Evans as his co- star, and was rated the number one Western star for 12 consecutive years. The pictures are still playing in theatres throughout the world and all were syndicated for domestic and foreign television.

Their radio and television shows achieved high ratings on three different networks, and they are currently preparing a Roy Rogers- Dale Evans Country and Western variety series for early release. Rogers and Miss Evans will star in three specials during 1972 and 1973.

Rogers and Miss Evans toured Vietnam in 1967 in their son Sandy's honor and memory. That was where he twice requested assignment to duty before his death in the U.S. Army in Germany in 1965.

Current activities include a multitude of projects in which they are individually or jointly active. Rogers has recorded three new contemporary albums for Capitol records in Nashville, Tenn. Miss Evans has also recorded three new contemporary albums for Capitol in Nashville. Miss Evans' three religious albums include: "Get To Know The Lord", "It's Real" and "Faith, Hope and Charity" and are all released by Word Records.

Rogers and Miss Evans were married Dec. 31, 1947. Both of their previous spouses died earlier. They have reared a family of nine children and have 15 grandchildren.

Waste disposal up to residents

A new city ordinance on solid waste disposal will go into effect June 30 and will bring about widespread changes in how Sikeston residents will dispose of their garbage.

Basically, the law prohibits open burning and requires that all garbage be placed in a sealed, water- tight container and be disposed of in a sanitary landfill.

City Manager Jim Huff said the city is not planning to go into the collection business. The city ordinance was passed to bring the city into compliance with new state environmental regulations. Also, Huff said the city does not plan to collect the fees, preferring to leave that up to individual garbage collectors.

Specifically, the law requires that garbage cans must be provided for all solid waste except bulky rubbish and demolition and construction waste. Garbage cans must be provided for all houses and apartments and all institutions, businesses and industrial and agricultural establishments within the city limits.

Residential garbage cans must contain space for between 20 and 35 gallons of garbage. They must be leakproof, waterproof and fitted with a fly- tight lid. The cans must be covered at all times. They must have handles or some other way of making them easy to lift.

Garbage cans must have tapered sides for easy emptying and must be light weight so that the can and the garbage combined do not exceed 75 pounds.

The cans may be made of galvanized metal, rubber or fiberglass. Plastic cans may be used if the plastic does not become brittle in cold weather. Disposable plastic bags may be used if they are kept in a container for storage. They may be removed from the container and placed by the curb at collection times.

Commercial containers basically follow the same restrictions as those applying to residential garbage cans, except the weight and size limits are removed.

Tree limbs must be less than four inches in diameter and put in bundles not larger than 48 inches long and 18 inches in diameter. The weight of the bundle must not be more than 75 pounds.

Yard wastes such as grass clippings, tree trimmings and leaves must be kept in leak proof containers. Compost piles are permitted under the ordinance.

Tree limbs and yard wastes must be placed at the curb or alley, or at the rear of the building for collection. They must not be placed at collection points until the regularly scheduled collection day. Empty containers must be removed from the street after they have been emptied.

Bulky rubbish will be collected by a contract collector or private collector at the request of the person responsible for it. The fee will be based on the size, weight and type of rubbish collected.

All residential garbage, other than bulky materials, will be collected at least twice weekly with a mimimum interval of 48 hours between collections.

It will be illegal for any person to deposit solid waste in any garbage can other than his own, interfere in any manner with waste collection equipment, burn solid waste, dispose of solid waste at any facility or location which is not approved by the city and state divisions of health, or engage in the garbage collection business without a private collector's license issued by the city.

All garbage collected must be transported in a covered and watertight truck. It must be disposed of in an approved sanitary landfill. One is scheduled to open near Morley about the time the law goes into effect.

The city manager's office will issue notices for any violation discovered and will inform the violator of the corrective measures to take. If the corrective measures are not taken, the violator is liable for fines up to $500 for each day's violation.

In Scott County

Stamp program effective July 1

Scheduled registration for the Food Stamp Program ends today at the Scott County Welfare Department office, 312 E. Center St., but registrations will continue to be accepted after this time, according to Mrs. Cathleen Gipson, county welfare director.

Persons whose last names begin with S, T, U, V, W. Y, Y, and Z were scheduled to sign up today. Hours at the welfare office are from 8 a.m. to noon and 1 to 5 p.m.

The food stamp program will take effect July 1, replacing the commodity program, but the first food stamps will not be issued until July 5. Under the food stamp program, food is purchased at the grocery stores by the individual persons, which was not the case under the commodity program.

Food stamps may not be accepted for purchase of alcoholic beverages, tobacco, meats or foods labeled as imported, pet foods, toiletries, bottle deposits, household goods and foods prepared for consumption on the premises.

The food stamps can be used to pay the sales tax on eligible foods.

The grocer may not give credit to the new customer on the promise of future payment, and coupons must be torn from the book in the presence of the cashier.

To figure the monthly coupon allotment, the family's net income must be determined by the welfare office. When this is done, a table is used to relate the net income to the number of persons in a household. There is a monthly coupon allotment for each family size. The monthly cost of stamps to the family is determined by the net income.

The accompanying table is used by the welfare department to determine the monthly coupon allotment for each family under the food stamp program. The program becomes effective July 1.

To read the table, the net income is figured and located in the left column. Then the number of persons in each household is located in the column across the top of the table.

By following the horizontal line from the net income to where it meets with the vertical line from

149 Bootheel children tested

Lead poisioning no problem

Childhood lead- based paint poisoning does not exist as a major problem within the Bootheel, according to findings of a recent survey conducted to screen young children between the ages of one and six.

The survey was conducted through the efforts of the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission's Comprehensive Health Council, Delta Area Head Start Program, Missouri Division of Health District 4 and the Burea of Community Environmental Management of the U.S. Public Health Service.

The survey to assess the occurrence of lead- based paint poisoning, was unique in that it was the first such survey to be conducted in the nation exclusively with a rural area. All previous assessments have been in urban areas, particularly in urban blighted areas.

One hundred and forty-nine children were initially tested, using the finger prick method utilizing basically one drop of blood (micro analytical technique). Of the 149, two children were identified as having elevated blood lead levels. The two children will receive further tests and if required will be referred for diagnosis and treatment.

In addition, the homes of the two children will be tested to determine the possible source of lead in either the interior or exterior surfaces of the house. Walls and other surfaces will be tested with a portable wall lead analyzer utilizing the x-ray flourescence principle so multiple readings can be taken within a short time and without any damage to the house surface or coatings.

Although the survey showed no major problem exists, parents should be alert and take precautiosn to prevent small children from being poisoned by lead paint. Never allow your child to eat paint or plaster and be alert for several of the symptoms of lead poisoning, such as decreased appetite, irritability, clumsiness, unwillingness to play, headache, abdominal pain, drowsiness or vomiting.

State may maintain Scott roads

BENTON— Gary D. Chegwidden of Sikeston, designer for the State Highway Department, discussed the possibility of the state maintaining certain roads in the county at Thursday's Scott County Court meeting.

The court submitted a list of five roads to Chegwidden it would most like the state to take over.

Mentioned was the road running from Blodgett to Highway 77 and continuing on the road from Morley from Route H to Highway 77. This would complete the base- line road from east to west, which is part of Highway 91 and part of Routes C and D. Another road submitted was the road one mile north of Perkins from Route T in Scott County to Highway 77, with a portion to run from Crowder east of McMullin to highway 61, crossing 61 and continuing east to Interstate 55.

The court also expressed the hope that the highway department will consider taking over Route M to the Nash Road.

Chegwidden said that a decision cannot be made until a traffic count was made on the roads, then checking to see if right of way is available. The state requires at least 80 feet of right of way which would have to be available before it takes over any road.

According to Presiding Judge Les D. Lankford, the program is similar to one which was started in 1950 when the farm to market roads were established.

Mrs. Cathleen Gipson, director of the Scott County Welfare Department, asked the court which days the county courtroom would be available for people to come in and sign up on the food stamp program.

The court told Mrs. Gipson that June 19 and June 26 could be made available.

Mrs. Gipson said persons unable to come in to apply may send someone in their place but would have to sign something saying they wanted to sign up. She also said anyone physically unable to come in may call the welfare office, a representative will be sent to the home.

The court accepted the lowest bid submitted on a new dump truck for the county from Sikeston Motor Co. for $15,947. The other bid submitted was by Cooney Equipment Co. of Sikeston for $17,014.42.

Sheriff John Dennis thanked the court for its cooperation over the weekend during the overflow of water in the Chaffee area.

CORONATION PLUS 20

It rained almost all day long in London on June 2, 1953. Still, a million Britons stood shoulder to shoulder in the streets with visitors from around the world. Some had camped on the sidewalks for two days in order to hold a favored spot to watch the coronation procession of Queen Elizabeth II -- then a 27- year- old mother of two. In a two- and- one- half-hour ceremony, the new queen promised "to govern the peoples of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, the Union of South Africa, Pakistan and Ceylon ... according to their respective laws and customs."

Queen Elizabeth II will celebrate her birthday, as well as the 20th anniversary of the coronation on Saturday, June 2. Actually, the queen was 47 years old on her real natal day of April 21. Commonwealth nations celebrate the queen's birthday whenever it is convenient and it is a moveable holiday in Britain, as well, traditionally held early in June. The anniversary is marked by the Trooping of the Color and an annual garden reception. The queen chooses the day to announce her honors list -- a semi- annual event in which the British aristocracy gets a transfusion of middle- class blood.

The royal family remains immensely popular in Britain and a major reason is the pleasure people derive from make- believe. Opinion polls show that many Britons believe the queen sets standards of family and personal behavior in Britain. While there are rumors that the queen gets lonely while Prince Philip roams the world, their marriage is said to be a happy one.

Much of the public's attention has switched to Charles, the Prince of Wales. Charles automatically becomes king on the death of his mother. However, she can step down in favor of her son at any time. Charles appears to relish his role and has said "I feel that there is a great deal I can do if I am given the chance to do it." Perhaps the queen will be thinking of that as she looks back 20 years to the day when she sat on the throne in Westminster Abbey and King Edward's six- pound crown was fixed on her head. (R.C.D.)

Alaska, our second youngest state and one still with a frontier spirit, is a stronghold of independent thought. It seems hundreds of Alaskans are now signing petitions asking the President and Congress "to grant us our land free and independent sovereignty, under the auspices of the United Nations ..." One of the projections of the Alaskan secession would be a return to a gold standard. As one supporter explains, an independent Alaskan nation could set the price of gold at $150 an ounce, make gold mining flourish again and "... back up our currency with gold..."

Not even imaginative Alasakns can possibly visualize what might happen if they become a separate nation operating on a gold standard. The promise of monetary stability alone would likely create an immigration problem for Alaska that would inundate the state.

The Alaskan secession proposal may be impractical, but the possibilities it presents are intriguing to those of us who are weary of international money- juggling and other games played with our economy.

Things have reached the place in Washington with the Watergate scandal that we really wonder whether those who have confessed to what they have done, can be punished. There is so much governmental power protecting so many people, it seems really questionable whether anybody can be punished. And the silliest thing we can think of is that the President was not aware of what was going on. At least, there are powerful persons in the government who maintain he did not know -- and he says he didn't.

WHAT THE GRAND JURY IS AND WHAT IT DOES

The Watergate affair is focusing national attention on a federal grand jury in Washington, D.C., which is investigating the case. U.S. News & World Report explains what a grand jury is and what it does as follows:

What is a grand jury?

A grand jury is a special panel of citizens set up not to try people but to decide whether a person should be brought to trial. Its primary function is to protect people against unjustified prosecution in court.

How does a grand jury operate?

A government prosecutor presents evidence, witnesses are interrogated, and the grand jury then decides if there is probable cause to believe the suspect has committed a crime. If so, the grand jury issues an indictment.

What is an indictment?

An indictment is merely a formal accusation, a charge on which the grand jury recommends that the accused be tried. It is not a conviction.

Is an indictment required before any criminal case can be prosecuted?

No. But the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution requires that "no person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous, crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury" -- except in military cases. That has been interpreted as requiring a grand- jury action in all federal criminal cases in which a conviction could mean a prison sentence of more than one year. About half the States use a similar procedure. Other States use a so- called criminal information -- a formal charge by a prosecutor -- instead of a grand jury indictment.

How is a federal grand jury set up?

It is ordered by a judge, usually at a prosecutor's request. Members are chosen at random from voter lists. A federal grand jury may have 16 to 23 members. The votes of 12 or more members -- a majority -- are required for an indictment.

Is a grand jury proceeding governed by the same rules as a trial court?

No. There are no strict rules. A witness may be asked almost anything. Hearsay evidence is admissible. The aim is to establish only "probable cause" for trial -- not to convict.

Who may be present at a grand jury session?

Usually, only the attorneys for the government, the witness being examined, and the official stenographers reporting the proceedings. When the grand jury is deliberating or voting on indictments, nobody other than the jury members may be present.

May a witness refuse to answer a grand jury's questions?

Yes. He may claim his constitutional privilege against self- incrimination. In case of dispute, a court will decide whether the claim is proper. A witness who refuses to answer a question ruled proper can be held in contempt of court.

What if a prosecutor grants a witness immunity from prosecution?

If a witness refuses to talk after receiving immunity, he could be jailed for contempt.

Does a suspect have a right to appear before the grand jury?

Not an absolute right. But he may be allowed -- and can be compelled -- to do so. The suspect cannot force a grand jury to hear witnesses he wants to testify in his behalf.

Are grand jury proceedings secret?

In most cases, yes. Prosecutors and members are not supposed to discuss the proceedings outside the jury room. A witness may discuss his testimony outside the jury room, however, unless restricted by a judge's order.

Why this secrecy?

The aim is to encourage witnesses to testify without fear of publicity or retaliation and to protect the independence of the grand jury.

Why has the grand jury system recently been criticized?

Critics charge that grand juries are sometimes used by prosecutors to conduct improper investigations, to "rubber stamp" unjustified accusations, or to intimidate political dissenters.

FOREIGN INVESTMENT HYPOS DOMESTIC JOBS AND TRADE

An exhaustive new study by Union Carbide Corp. shows that its foreign investments have resulted in more exports from the U. S. and more jobs in the U. S. then would have been the case had the investment not been made.

These and other findings, detailed in a comprehensive report released recently, are in direct conflict with recent charges by critics of the so-called "multinational" corporation that overseas investments by U. S. corporations are weakening the domestic economy and contributing to the nation's unemployment problem.

The survey revealed that Union Carbide's U. S. exports increased as its overseas investments expanded. In fact, from 1951 to 1970, the dollar growth of the corporation's exports from the U. S. signficantly out paced that of its affiliated foreign manufacturing operations, increasing 7- fold in 20 years. This was attributed largely to the "pull" effect which affiliated overseas manufacturing exerts on U. S. exports.

Union Carbide's vice-president for international affairs, George C. Wells, describes the "pull" phenomenon this way: "While the establishment of a plant within a particular foreign market obviously reduces U. S. exports of the specific product manufactured by the new plant, this loss of exports is more than offset by the resultant increase in U. S. exports of allied, intermediate or accessory products."

The report credited the "pull" effect with more than a half billion dollars in U. S. export sales from 1951-70 over and above what the corporation would have realized if it had not invested aboard during this period. In terms of domestic employment, this translates into nearly 2,000 additional export- related U. S. jobs within Union Carbide alone which otherwise would not exist.

WELL-EARNED AWARD

No one is more deserving of the L. M. Graves Memorial Award than Dr. Bland Cannon, a Memphis Neurosurgeon and one of the founders of the Mid-South Medical Center Council. He received the honor Thursday night from the MMCC at its annual banquet.

The award, named after a former superintendent of the old city health department, recognizes outstanding contributions to health care in the Memphis area.

The MMCC was formed in 1966 largely through Cannon's efforts. His goal was to eliminate fragmented planning and the competition of special interest groups for authority over isolated segments of the health industry. Ultimately, he hoped, the quantity of health care could be increased without reducing its quality. At a time when the system of health services is under pressure for major reforms, Cannon's leadership has been a steadying influence and a promising sign that the medical profession can help the system adapt to changing needs without breaking down.

JUST TOO MUCH NOISE

An Inebriat dreaded the tongue - lashing from his wife that invariably accompanied his return home in the early morning hours.

So, one night after a long session with the boys, he returned home and made a bee-line for the garage where he found a suitable length of rope. He took the rope to the kitchen and tied skillets, pots and pans to the rope and then fastened the rope around his waist and headed for the stairway to where his wife was sleeping.

"This ought to work 'cause she will never hear me in this infernal din!"

OUR PRIMARY OBJECTIVE

The daily headlines relate the growing scandal in Washington. They are headlines that bode no good for the nation and the body politic, but they shall pass. In the meantime we, the people of Republic USA, must get on with the job of making our nation the best in the world. Perhaps it would be better to say "keeping it the best." We have the incentive and the natural resources to improve our lot and the lot of all mankind. Let us work together to produce and defend.

Our main enemy is still the communist conspiracy. It exists to a degree within our own ranks at home and it is still a potent force in other nations. Be it at home or abroad, communism has but one aim, and that is to destroy us as a nation and as individuals. We are still on top as a free, constitutional Republic. The profit- motive system of doing business is the envy of the world, even the communist world. Despite the evil of inflation and government control, we have prospered and we have set the pace in most fields of endeavor. We are strong in the fields of science and the arts and above all in the practice of hard work. Our goals, if set in the right direction, can all be attained if we dedicate ourselves to the proposition of improvement.

No, the nation is not going to collapse, despite the gloomy headlines. It is a time when our enemies should not underestimate us nor should we underestimate ourselves. Let us defend ourselves at home and abroad against communism and the internal forces of corruption. The constitution has not let us down. We must not let it down. HLH

NEW YORK (AP) — Maybe I'm a male chauvinist pig. Maybe I'm not a male chauvinist pig.

But whether or not I am, I'm tired of being called one by a lot of strident women who ought to be tossed into the town pond as common scolds.

A lot of men I know are also getting annoyed by being denounced as male chauvinist pigs by a pack of female harridans who wouldn't be pleased by a man if he were a cross between Sir Galahad and St. Francis.

Because of a courtesy to the fair sex learned at my mother's knee — the lesson was applied with the back end of a hairbrush — I wouldn't refer to these shrewish ladies as female chauvinist pigs.

But female they are — and chauvinists they are. The dictionary defines chauvinism as "undue partiality or attachment to an ideal or cause."

I submit that a majority of the women of America themselves recognize that some of these apostles and their claims are ridiculous, hysterical and downright laughable. Some of these female chauvinists seem to want not equality with men but outright war between the sexes. I don't think the ordinary American woman wants to be without a man or, having him, to make a war between them. The goal is one of mutual affection and respect — and fun.

But what is puzzling to most men is a new type of hybrid female emerging from the women's liberation movement.

She is the type who wants to exact from a man the gallantries of the past but at the same time insist on her right to compete with him on fully equal terms in the career field.

Even if she is trying to take his own job away from him, she expects him too —

Push her way through the revolving door as they enter the office building.

Let her enter the elevator first.

Let her get out of the elevator first.

Defer to her during office conferences.

Watch her flaunt sex in a way he can't.

Let her have the first cab he can hail on a rainy day, if they leave the office at the same time.

Light her cigarettes at office functions.

Reach for the tab first if they have a business luncheon.

Yes, she is woman — he is man. Even though she is after his very bread and butter, he can't treat her as a rival. Politeness is forced on him by every tradition of the past.

What can a man do to deal with the underhanded tactics of this new hybrid type of woman he now confronts more often every year?

The truth is that it is all so new to him the average man.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Nixon's Waterbug Cover-up Meant to Protect Plumbers

WASHINGTON -- If the Watergate prosecutors had their way, the anticipated indictment of the White House conspirators (1) would indicate President Nixon helped to cover up the illegal operations of his subordinates and (2) would suggest that his possible involvement should be investigated further.

The prosecutors have raised the presidential question in a careful, confidential memorandum, which discusses the options for dealing with evidence against the President. The final decision will be up to special prosecutor Archiblad Cox, who is now in charge of the case.

As we reported on May 25, Assistant Attorney General Henry Patersen previously had reminded the prosecutors that the President was not on trial. Petersen had instructed them specifically not to inquire into the personal conversations between the President and his lawyer.

This attitude from above had an inhibiting effect upon the prosecutors, although Petersen assured us he had not intended it. They missed several opportunities to inquire into the President's involvement and, indeed, seemed reluctant to bring up his name. But in more recent weeks, they have pulled no punches.

CAN'T PRETEND

The secret, sworn testimony has produced absolutely no evidence that the President was implicated in the Watergate burglary and bugging. But sorces close to the investigation tell us the prosecutors can no longer pretend that he was innocent of the cover-up.

With the aid of these sources, we have put together the case against the President. It is based on testimony both published and still secret.

By his own account, President Nixon tried to set up an antisubversive operation, headed by the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, to deal with "grave" security threats. This extraordinary, extralegal squad would have been empowered to break into the quarters of security suspects.

When Hoover would have no part of this, the plan was abandoned. But subsequently, the President established his own para-police unit, known as "the plumbers," inside the White House. Two of the plumbers, G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt, broke into the offices of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist in Los Angeles in September 1971.

NIXON'S ORDERS

The same pair also masterminded the Watergate burglary, which culminated in their arrest the following June. The President immediately instructed aides H. R. Haldemand and John Ehrlichman "to insure" that the Watergate investigation didn't expose "the activities of the White House investigative unit."

The prosecutors believe Nixon's motive was more to hide the undercover activities of the plumbers who had his blessing than to protect the Waterbuggers who did not. But the Watergate investigation threatened to uncover the Liddy- Hunt operation, which would lead straight to the plumbers team.

Haldeman and Ehrlichman would have had difficulty protecting the plumbers without also covering the Watergate tracks. The available evidence indicates they made little attempt to separate the two Liddy- Hunt projects.

First, the White House pair tried to confine the investigation to the five men who had been arrested inside the Watergate. Haldeman and Ehrlichman, proclaiming it "the President's wish," even tried to get the CIA to intervene with the FBI to limit the investigation.

HUSH MONEY

Once Liddy and Hunt were ensnared in the Watergate conspiracy, according to the sworn testimony, Haldeman and Ehrlichman arranged to funnel hush money by a devious route to the defendants to buy their silence.

The President's personal attorney, Herb Kalmback, was enlisted. He drew a reported $75,000 from chief fund raiser Maurice Stans, another $60,000 from White House counsel John Dean. Kalmbach also raised $75,000 from Northrop Aviation executives.

He was instructed to pay the money to a New York undercoverman, Anthony Ulasewicz, who allegedly distributed it to the defendants. The testimoney shows that Kalmbach, troubled over these subterranean arrangements, went to Ehrlichman for reassurance. Ehrlichman solemnly swore to Kalmbach, according to the testimony, that he was acting in the national interest.

President Nixon has cited "national security" as his reason for wanting to conceal the activities of the plumbers. Even after he ordered a full Watergate investigation last March, he gave secret orders to Henry Petersen not to expose the plumbers' operation. He loosened up on this order only after both Petersen and then - Attorney General Richard Kleindienst threatened to resign.

WEAK CLAIM

The President's claim of "national security," in the prosecutors' opinion, is weak. Little attempt was made, in all the clandestine White House operations, to separate political security from national security.

As far back as 1969, Haldeman ordered Kalmbach to pay Ulasewicz out of political funds. Unknown to Kalmbach, Ulasewicz devoted most of his efforts to digging up dirt on Democrats, including Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass.

Haldeman and Ehrlichman directed not only Ulasewicz's political espionage, according to the testimony, but the plumbers' security espionage as well. Both Liddy and Hunt, along with the other plumbers, were paid by the taxpayers for their illegal activities.

Later, Liddy and Hunt were assigned to the President's campaign committee. Campaign funds were also used to finance the cover-up of the plumbers' operation, which the President ordered for security reasons.

The President will have trouble, in other words, distinguishing where politics ended and security began.

Could Control Nation: Hoffa Plans Ellsbert Strategy To Challange White House

WASHINGTON — Sweating it out luxuriously in a West Coast spa much of this past month, white- soxed Jimmy Hoffa followed the Ellsberg-Pentagon Papers theft trial avidly, reportedly voiced approval at the judge's abrupt dismissal of all proceedings and determined to consult one of the three defense attroneys--- Leonard Boudin of New York City.

Off and on counselor Boudin has been a favorite of Hoffa's for a decade or so--- one of a hundred such lawyers in what the trade has called "Jimmy's own bar association." But few of them have ever done so well by the former all- powerful Teamsters' general president as Boudin did for the admitted purloiner of classified Defense Dept. and Rand think- tank documents. Hoffa believes he needs just such an attorney to challenge President Nixon's bar on his "direct or indirect management" of a labor organization until March 1980.

There's far more fundamental significance to Jimmy Hoffa's ambition for a re-seizure of the vast Teamsters Brotherhood than the ego of this ex-convict, this friend of men identified by federal authorities as Mafiosi, a man often talked of as a complex of brutish physical instincts.

There is far more here than Hoffa's low-key feud with incumbent general president Frank "Fitz" Fitzsimmons. The issue it seems to me is control of a massive labor organization, the nation's largest, which is at the inner gears of America's distributive system. Hoffa learned this well from his early days at the side of Leon Trotsky's American representative, Farrell Dobbs, in the '30s in Minneapolis.

Few really have looked deeply into the Teamsters organization. It is now more than 2.2 million strong. It reaches from the California salad valleys to the Atlantic fisheries by way of more than 900 locals.

Its cash on hand (in banks) on Jan. 1, 1973, was well over $23 million. It has an income of over $41 million annually. It dominates pension funds running into the billions --- and uncounted health and welfare cash flows which easily hit a billion dollars a year.

It has vast real estate holdings in addition to its $5 million headquarters here. Its "airfleet" cost over $3.5 million -- not counting its pilot and co-pilot. And there is its fleet of cars.

And it pays its officials well. The general president receives $125,000 annually. And an office-house near here which rents at an estimated "$4,000" annually. Its secretary- treasurer gets $100,000 yearly.

Because of the AFL-CIO'S feud with Mr. Nixon and the administratiom, the Teamsters are in a powerful position as the labor force in residence.

This is a powerful political, financial and social vehicle for any man to control. Hoffa wants the big wheel so he can centralize the general president's power. In his hands it could become the most powerful "civilian" force in the land --- perhaps a total force. Under Fitzsommons the power has been decentralized. The regions' conferences have become almost autonomous baronies, constituencies, call them what you will. They coordinate at collective bargaining time, which is now. I don't believe there will be a master freight haulers strike when the national contract expires June 30.

But if there would be a countrywide strike, that would be the day the nation would begin standing still. In a few weeks there would, in effect, develop a general strike, the most awesome of its kind.

So the jousting for the leadership of the Teamsters is not any esoteric battle. Therefore it is fascinating to watch Fitz and his advisers strip Hoffa's allies of their power. The Hoffa bloc is led mostly by Hoffa's "angel" of some 25 years standing --- Teamsters fourth vice president Harold J. Gibbons. First Gibbons was moved out of the directorship of the central states conference; then he was stripped of the airline division. Last week, after some easy reading of the handlettering on the wall, Gibbons "emotionally" quit as secretary- treasurer (eminence grise) of Teamsters Local 688, which covers the city of St. Louis and six counties. He also left the regional joint council and some other posts. And took other officials with him.

He is still, however, a $55,000- a-year Teamsters vice president. In 1972, his expense account ran to $16,958.15. He won't starve. He's in until 1976--- elected by the '71 convention.

By tradition, should he take the hint (word is that the Teamsters' general executive board was about to put his home local 688 under trusteeship) and quit as national vice president, he would retire on pensions, local and national, totalling upward of $100,000 a year. The Teamsters are generous when it comes to money. Mrs. Josephine Hoffa earns $48,000 annually as director of the Ladies Auxiliary of DRIVE (Democrats, Republicans, Independent Voter's Education). And Hoffa's "adopted son" Charles "Chuck" O'Brien gets $25,000 annually and over $5,000 in allowances as a general organizer.

Gibbons slipped out quietly--- few of his few friends left inside the Teamsters knew he would resign at a local membership meeting. Thus Jimmy Hoffa and Gibbons are a lonely intimate bloc. Not even Gibbons's old friend Frankie Sinatra is around. Hoffa does manage to get a local or two (such as Local 250 Teamsters, Pittsburgh) to invite him for a speech. But he's not quitting. Just sweating it out. Readying to challenge the President and the government by running for president of his old home Detroit Local 299--- of which Fitz still is vice president. Perhaps counselor Boudin could do for Hoffa what he did for Ellsberg--- get the government off his back. It's all well worth watching--- for the nation, that is.

Henry L. Swope of Charleston received a 10 day suspended sentence and was placed on six months probation on a charge of operating a motor vehicle while his licenses were revoked, and ordered to pay $16 costs in the case. A second charge of improper parking brought Swope a $26 fine and he was given until Saturday to pay the fine and costs. Swope pleaded not guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated and the case was continued to June 7 for setting. He was released on his own recognizance. An additional charge of illegal use of special driving privileges license was dismissed.

Ann Landers

Girl embarrassed by retarded brother

Dear Ann Landers: Our neighbors have a retarded son. He is about 12 or 13 years old but his behavior level is around five. He is a very sweet child, pleasant and polite, but it is apparent he is mentally defective.

The reason I am writing is that his 15- year- old sister is ashamed of the lad and doesn't want her boy friends to see him. She is afraid it will damage her socially. When she brings boys home from school she insists that her brother stay in his room, out of sight.

The parents insist they don't want their normal children to suffer because of the retarded child, so they have gone along with the girl's request. My husband I think it is appalling. Please state your views, Ann. We know they read your column every day.--- Problem In Iowa

Dear Iowa: The girl's attitude was shaped long before she had boy friends, and it is a sad commentary on the upbringing she received from her parents. That young lady should have been taught many years ago that her brother is a very special child and he needs extra love and understanding. I hope those parents will check their phone book for the address of the local Chapter for Retarded Children and request their literature. They need educating. If there is no local chapter, the National Headquarters is 2709 Avenue E, East, Arlington, Texas 76011

Dear Ann Landers: That quick- thinking wife from Richmond with the recipe for Hungarian Goulash on the flip side of the newspaper clipping of her good- looking "committee acquaintance" was lucky. It could have been a recipe for Cantonese Bird's Nest Soup. Of course, any dolt-headed husband who ventures into a woman's handbag in search of housekeys, instead of taking the simpler expedient of kicking the door down, would swallow anything.

But I do admire the gal's nimble- footedness. Machiavelli would have wanted her on his team. A recipe for Hungarian Goulash indeed! Paprika for the mind!--- Skeptical Paul From Montreal

Dear Paul: Your letter gave me mental indigestion. Where's your faith, man?

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are so mad we could chew nails. We bought a new car 17 months ago. It cost us a lot more money than we had a right to pay, but we decided it would be cheaper than a second- hand model in the long run. We've had that new car in the garage three times since January. The last repair bill was $45. Please don't tell us to take it back to the dealer. We tried. He isn't interested in complaints. Just trades or sales. What can we do? Will the customer EVER get a break when it comes to car repairs?--- Squeezed By A Lemon

Dear Squeezed: Contact the Better Business Bureau and give them chapter and verse. They do a splendid job of making people straighten up and fly right. Let's hope that one day we Americans will get the same break the consumer gets in Sweden. Garages must guarantee all repair work for 3,125 miles or three months--- whichever comes first. Wouldn't that be beautiful?

Confidential to Winds At Northwestern: Never mind about HIM--- I'm interested in YOU. Please tell me how a guy who can't spell "grateful" and puts a "d" in "congratulations" and two "e's" in judgment got into Northwestern. As for your "problem," it sounds like that of a Yale guy who moved to Evanston.

Schafer-Groseclose

CHAFFEE — First United Methodist Church was the scene of the May 19 wedding of Miss Nancy Eunice Groseclose and Thomas Charles Schafer.

The couple exchanged vows before an altar adorned with baskets of spring flowers, double candelabra and Trinity candles. The Rev. Richard Combs officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Organist was Miss Mary Ann Seyer, pianist was Mrs. Mary Frances Burnett and Mrs. Richard Sanders sang.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Groseclose of Chaffee and Mr. and Mrs. George Schafer of Cape Girardeau are parents of the couple.

A pinafore of cluny lace accented the formal voile and lace gown worn by the bride when she was escorted down the aisle by her father. The gown had a high neckline, lantern sleeves trimmed with the cluny lace and bands of lace encircling the demi-bell skirt. Her chapel- length veil was bordered with lace and held in place by a matching bandeau. She carried a bouquet of orchids, daisies, pompon chrysanthemums and babies' breath.

Miss Janey Groseclose was her sister's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were the Misses Lucille Seyer and Cheryl Birk of Jackson. Misses Pam and Carole Robinson of Carbondale, Ill., were candle- lighters.

The attendants wore flocked voile formal gowns with the honor attendants in green and bridesmaids wearing orchid. Picture hats trimmed to match the gowns and nosegays of daisies, pompons and babies' breath, completed their attire.

Emily Darby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Darby and Terry Rhodes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Rhodes of Randles, were the flower girl and ringbearer.

The groom chose Rhodes as best man, and his brothers, Edward Schafer of Scott City and William and Robert Schafer of Cape Girardeau, as groomsmen. Seating the guests were David Summers, Dana Wolfe and Michael Crouch of Kennett.

Serving at the church fellowship hall, where the couple received guests, were Miss Gail Bumgardner, Mrs. Edward Schafer, Mrs. William Schafer and Mrs. Don Freeman. Guest book attendant was Mrs. David Perschbacher.

The bride is a senior at South East Missouri State University in Cape Girardeau majoring in elementary education. Schafer, also a senior at the university, is majoring in industrial arts and is employed at N. O. Nelson Co.

After a wedding trip to the Ozarks, the couple will live in Cape Girardeau.

Senate members ham it up at first live broad cast

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — If the first live radio broadcast of the Missouri Senate did not have the drama of the Watergate hearings, it wasn't because the senators weren't trying.

After they noticed the big directional microphone of KMOX radio station in St. Louis peering at them from over the president's chair Thursday, they launched in an hour and one-half of oratory on a minor bill.

The two-hour broadcast "prolonged debate on the bill for an extra hour", said Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R-Brentwood.

He said he offered one amendment in fun just to see if another senator would respond. The senator did, for about 10 minutes.

After a number of senators had spoken, Sen. Lem T. Jones, R-Kansas City, said:

"Is there any senator in KMOX-land who hasn't talked yet? Has anybody been missed?"

The bill being debated would require teachers to have extra schooling to help them recognize problems of exceptional students. Jones of Kansas City called it one of "these silly bills" in which government would be laying down specific educational requirements. He facetiously offered an amendment to have all the legislators take the same training.

Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, spent the entire two hours in the president pro tem's chair, although he normally lets others assist in the chore of presiding. He turned it over to another senator just after the broadcast ended.

Asked if the microphone made any difference, Cason said, "I didn't notice any difference. We made fine progress."

News reporters who normally cover the Senate noticed the senators were speaking louder than usual, especially when a roll call vote was taken.

It was also observed that a senator who often appears to doze during debate stayed awake during the two-hour period. But afterwards he was seen with his head sideways in one hand, eyeglasses pushed high upon the forehead.

After the broadcast ended, narrator Bob Hardy was approached in the hallway by a smiling Sen. Edward Stone, R-Chesterfield. "I just got a call from St. Louis. They heard me on KMOX," Stone said.

Hardy said that while the senators may have hammed it up a bit, they probably would not be so conscious of the microphone after several broadcasts. He said radio listeners "eat this up," and noted the station had covered important committee hearings earlier this session.

The broadcast Thursday was offered to five other radio stations, Hardy said. He called it a lesson in government that allowed listeners to more fully understand the legislative process.

Sen. Albert Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, who often speaks on the bills, would not do so Thursday, saying "no way."

"Just what I thought would happen did," Spradling said. He predicted that with more live coverage, "We'll never pass another bill."

Unemployment rate holds at 5 per cent for May

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate, still failing to respond to the economic boom, held stubbornly at five per cent of the work force in May, the government said today.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said the U.S. job picture was essentially unchanged since last November although the economy was in the midst of one of its most vigorous expansions in history during that period.

As in April, the number of people that the bureau counted out of work totaled 4.4 million. The work force remained at 84 million, the bureau said. The figures were adjusted to take seasonal job patterns into account.

Actually, there was a small decline in total unemployment, but the drop was about in line with the usual job picture from April to May, the bureau added.

The report cast new doubt on whether the Nixon administration will be able to bring the jobless rate to the range of 4.5 per cent by year's end, as it has forecast. The administration now is trying to slow the economy down, a policy that would tend to push the unemployment rate up.

AFL-CIO President George Meany, commenting on the monthly figures, said that while the unemployment rate was remaining at 5 per cent "inflation continued at a rapid rate, profits skyrocketed, interest rates climbed sharply, speculation continue unchecked and corporate executives received more than ever."

Meany called this a "dismal record" and said it "is the direct result of administration economic policies which are inequitable and unfair to workers."

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, noted that total civilian employment rose by about 100,000 in May, much less than the average of 300,000 per month from November to March.

"This is another piece of evidence, along with earlier reports on sales and new orders, to suggest that the pace of economic expansion has at least temporarily subsided from the unsustainable and highly inflationary rate of previous months," Stein said.

The bureau said that the number of unemployed persons who had lost their last job was 1.6 million, the lowest point since April 1970.

The report said the average hourly earnings of production or nonsupervisory workers went up by two cents to $3.84.

Average weekly earnings increased $1.12 to $142.46, primarily because of the increase in hourly earnings and a small rise in the work week.

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — A $1.5 billion aviation industry is centered in the eight-county Southwest Metroplex, a 6,214-square-mile area around Dallas and Fort Worth.

The area supports some 100 airports and more than 75 miles of runways.

Eighteen foreign airlines have offices in the Metroplex, and nine regular airlines and seven commuter lines make more than 800 flights daily.

13 injuries treated

Two area traffic accidents Thursday resulted in injuries to three persons, according to the highway patrol.

A three-car accident at 3:40 p.m. at the junction of Highways 60 and 61 at the south city limits of Sikeston injured two.

The accident occurred when a car driven by Geneva Stewart, 59, of New Madrid was making a left turn to go south on High 61 and was struck in the right side by a car driven east by Albert Mier, 71, of Cairo, Ill. The Stewart car then struck a northbound truck driven by Samuel Binford, 59, of Sikeston.

Mrs. Stewart received a shoulder injury and a passenger in her car, Lena Bodi, 75, of New Madrid sustained a chest injury. Both were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

John David Wheeler, 17, of Jackson received a possible back injury at 3:15 p.m. when two miles west of Jackson on Highway 34 when his motorcycle came up behind a car driven by Nola Irene Henry, 54, of Jackson which was stopped in the westbound lane Wheeler applied his brakes, lost control and struck the auto from behind.

Wheeler was taken to Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau.

TORONTO (AP) — The St. Lawrence Seaway is the quietest, cleanest and cheapest highway in Canada.

An engineering report by Ken Gilbert of the Toronto Harbor Commission said that the cost of the full 2,000-mile route was no greater than the cost of building 29 miles of expressway.

Clarkton to receive revenue sharing funds

CLARKTON — The City of Clarkton will receive $12,952.34 in revenue sharing money which has been appropriated under federal guide lines for health, sanitation and street improvements.

Areas where priorities for using the revenue sharing money exist were discussed at length at the last meeting of the Board of Aldermen, and it was determined that the greatest area of need was in the three fields selected.

The city has obligated $2,500 toward spraying for mosquitoes and other disease carrying insects. The mosquito problem has become prevalent since the heavy rains, and numerous Clarkton residents have requested that the city spray for mosquitoes. As the result of these requests the funds have been allotted.

The lack of proper sewer drain-offs was another priority problem, and the board has committed $3,000 to rehabiliate and install new drain-offs for the city.

Street improvement has long been a necessity. The town is growing and many old streets need improvements. A total of $8,469.34 has been obligated for street improvements, based on the present amount of revenue sharing money.

Individuals or groups are invited to offer other plans for expenditure of the revenue sharing money, under federal guidelines, for better use of the funds.

Sophomore catcher Dan Smith, Dexter, was the only Northeast Missouri State University baseball player selected to the MIAA All-Conference first team last weekend. The announcement was released by league coaches Saturday after a meeting in St. Louis.

Smith, chosen as a utility man on the 1972 first unit, batted only .260 this spring, but he compiled a .455 average in the final two weeks of the season. The stocky backstop smashed four home runs to lead NMSU and the MIAA.

He paced the Purple and White with 12 runs- batted-in and four stolen bases. Smith tied for team high with 34 total bases, 12 runs, and one triple.

The new summer archery leagues are now forming at Six Gold Archery Range, 603 David Blvd., Sikeston.

Two leagues will be starting Tuesday, June 5 at 7:30 p.m. and Wednesday, June 6 at 7:30. These will be open for target archers. The Thursday night league is for archers using hunting bows only. Additional information may be obtained by calling 471-6870.

Watkins, pitching for the National Guard, had a shutout Thursday night against Bank of Sikeston turning them back 5- 0 in Sikeston Fast Pitch Softball. Lambert had the loss.

In the following game, Ziegenhorn took a 6- 2 win from Probst. Garrett threw the winning game, and Cook was the losing pitcher.

OTTAWA (AP) — About 100 athletes from five countries will compete here July 1 in one of five Pacific Conference Games to be held in Canada this summer.

Competitors from Canada, Japan, the United States, New Zealand, and Australia will take part in track meets in Toronto, June 27-28; Saskatoon, July 2-3; Montreal, July 4; and Victoria, July 7.

Developed by the Japanese Track and Field Association in 1969 the games are held every four years.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Eddie Read, director of publicity for San Diego's Del Mar Throughbred Club, died Monday of a heart attack suffered while working in his garden. He was 56.

Read had been active in Southern California racing circles for nearly 40 years and had been associated with Del Mar since 1937.

NHL stars

MONTREAL (AP) — The Montreal Canadiens, the 1972-73 National Hockey League Stanley Cup champions, placed three players on the NHL AllStar first team, the NHL announced today.

The Canadiens, who finished first in the East Division, then defeated Buffalo, Philadelphia and Chicago for the Stanley Cup, placed goalie Ken Dryden, defenseman Guy Lapointe and left winger Frank Mahovlich on the NHL's first team.

Defenseman Bobby Orr and center Phil Esposito, both of the Boston Bruins, joined Mickey Redmond of the Detroit Red Wings in rounding out the team.

Dryden, a second-team goalie in 1971-72, topped the balloting with 238 points followed by Orr's 236. It was the sixth straight year that Orr has made the first team after being a second-team choice in his rookie season.

The Chicago Black Hawks, first-place finishers in the West who lost the Stanley Cup final series in six games to Montreal after posting early round victories over St. Louis and New York, were represented on the NHL's second team by goalie Tony Esposito, defenseman Bill White and left winger Dennis Hull.

Bobby Clarke, the Philadelphia center who recently was chosen the leagues Most Valuable Player, Yvan Cournoyer, recipient of the Conn Smythe Trophy as MVP in the Stanley Cup finals, and defenseman Brad Park of the Rangers were the other second-team selections.

Baseball roundup

"I throw hard and Willie Stargell swings hard," said Gary Gentry, "so if he hits the ball it stands to reason it's going to go a long way."

Stargell hit the ball hard, and it went a long way Thursday night.

Pittsburgh's veteran slugger blasted a three- run homer against the Atlanta right- hander in the bottom of the eighth inning, spoiling an otherwise neat job by Gentry and lifting the Pirates to a 3- 1 victory over the Braves.

The homer was Stargell's 14th this season, tops in the major leagues. It also was a tape measure job, landing in the upper deck of Three Rivers Stadium, an area reached only three times before--- each of those times by Stargell.

Nellie Briles, who doesn't have to worry about pitching to Stargell, earned the victory with a three- hitter.

Elsewhere in the slim National League schedule, Chicago battered Houston 16- 8 and Cincinnati edged St. Louis 3- 2.

In the American League, California nipped Boston 7- 6, Minnesota trimmed Milwaukee 4- 2, Oakland blanked New York 6- 0, Texas defeated Cleveland 9- 5. Kansas City beat Baltimore 4- 1 and Chicago trounced Detroit 10- 2.

Cincinnati ended St. Louis' winning streak at eight games, beating the Cardinals on a home run by Joe Morgan.

Morgan's sixth homer of the year snapped a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning to beat Bob Gibson, 3- 6. He had doubled in the fourth when the reds scored their first two runs.

Lou Brock had a two- run homer for the Cardinals.

Jose Cardenal and Carmen Fanzone each drilled two- run singles in a 10- run Chicago explosion in the first inning as the Cubs blitzed Houston.

All of the Cubs runs were unearned with Doug Rader's two- out error opening the gates. Randy Hundley singled home a run during the first inning rally and added a home run in the fifth. Rick Monday also homered for the Cubs.

Jesus Alou and Tommie Agee homered for Houston.

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) — Assistant football Coach Robbie Franklin of Western Kentucky University has resigned his post to take a coaching job at Georgia Tech, Western officials said Monday.

Franklin will be joining the staff of head Coach Bill Fulcher as coach of the specialty and kicking teams.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Both attendance and mutuel handle records were broken at the AkSar-Ben race track Monday as Haveago won the $25,000 added King's Handicap.

Attendance was 29,599 or about 4,000 more than on Memorial Day in 1971. Mutuel handle was $1,711,150, about $45,000 more than on July 5, 1971.

Haveago, owned by Kenneth Opstein, a South Sioux City, Neb., insurance man, and ridden by J. L. Lively, paid $6.80, $3.60 and $4. Canadian Jeff of the Van Berg stable paid $5.20 and $4.20 and Haveago's stablemate Mambrino ran third in the Opstein entry.

Weiskopf first

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Tom Weiskopf has two big pluses going for him.

"I'm playing about as well as I ever have," he said after his brilliant, course record- matching 65 in Thursday's first round of the $200,000 Kemper Open.

The other plus — Jack Nicklaus isn't there.

Nicklaus, who scored a comfortable, front running victory over runner- up Weiskopf last week in Atlanta, isn't competing. He's the only man able to handle the streaking Weiskopf in recent weeks.

While his seven- under-par effort tied the course record at the 7,219- yard Quail Hollow Country Club layout, he needed every stroke to stay in front of youthful Lanny Wadkins. Wadkins, the Byron Nelson winner, had a 66.

At 67 were Ken Still, Mac McLendon, Bert Green, Leonard Thompson and red-headed rookie Pat Fitzsimons.

Arnold Palmer, coming off a one- month layoff, and Australian Bruce Crampton, a three- time winner this year, headed a group of more than a half dozen at 68 as the touring pros took advantage of near- perfect golfing weather to make a mockery of par.

More than half the field of 147 matched or bettered par 72 and there were 60 in sub- par figures.

Among them were 61-year- old marvel Sam Snead, 69; Lee Trevino, 70; and defending Kemper champion Doug Sanders, 71.

Gary Player, the little South African, making only his second start of the season in the United States, could do no better than 75 and must improve if he is to qualify for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Here are the top first round scores:

Weiskopf	32-33-65
Wadkins	33-33-66
B. Greene	30-37-67
Still	32-35-67
Fitzsimons	34-33-67
McLendon	33-34-67

Ziegler	34-34-68
Bohen	34-34-68

Cards- Royals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cincinnati braked the St. Louis Cardinals' winning streak at eight games Thursday night while Kansas City struck early to gain a series split with Baltimore.

Joe Morgan keyed the Reds' 3-2 triumph over Bob Gibson, 3-6, and the Redbirds. Morgan's sixth home run in the sixthe provided the winning run after the little second baseman had doubled in Cincy's two- run rally in the fourth.

The Royals stopped Baltimore, 4-1, as Gene Garber posted his fifth victory in six decisions and Amos Otis ripped a two- run single in the first.

Otis delivered after Oriole starter Mike Cuellar had walked the bases full with none out. Singles by Otis, John Mayberry and Kurt Bevacqua accounted for the other Royal runs in the seventh.

Don Baylor's third homer of the season in the seventh brought the O's their lone run.

Lou Brock's two- run blast in the fifth got the Cardinals on the scoreboard against Ross Grimsley, who scattered seven hits and boosted his record to 5-4.

Reggie Cleveland, 4-4, is scheduled to start for the Cards tonight when the Houston Astros move in for a weekend series at Busch Stadium. Larry Dierker will be seeking his first decision for the Astros.

Indy 500 reform

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The crowds were gone, the cars were being put on trailers and taken away, the drivers were gone, but the mud, trash and memories lingered at Indianapolis Motor Speedway Thursday.

The 57th edition of the Indianapolis 500-mile race turned out to be the toughest in history to get run. Twice it was washed out and four times it was marred by tragedy with a driver and a crewman dying, two drivers injured seriously and 10 spectators hospitalized.

Twenty-four hours after the race finally ended in the rain at 332½ miles, Speedway Supt. Clarence Cagle said he wasn't sure where to start with the cleanup of the 539-acre plant.

Many of the areas in the infield used for parking on race day are a quagmire, and the nine-hole gold course in the infield area is more than grass in many places.

Hotels, restaurants, airlines, school officials and police found Thursday generally just a normal business day after the hectic events of the early part of the week.

Although hotels and motels and restaurants had turnaway business for two extra days because of the rain postponements, almost everyone was happy to see it over.

There were manpower problems at the Speedway, both inside and out.

By Tuesday only 72 Speedway guards were on duty, compared with 180 Monday. The number fell to 57 Wednesday.

Those people are privately employed by the Speedway, but the police outside-directing traffic and handling the huge throngs of visitors and campers—are not.

There were 600 Indianapolis policemen on duty Tuesday, but the force was cut to 100 Wednesday morning. Winston Churchill, Indianapolis police chief, said 100 more policemen were placed on duty when word came the race would be run.

A number of officers worked 40 straight hours.

Mayor Richard G. Lugar, noting that the Speedway does not offset city expenses relating to the Indy race, said, "I'm sure we'll have to re-evaluate the given extremities of the situation. All the burdens involved and the turmoil that was caused by the postponements this year."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Before this year's accident-jinxed Indianapolis 500 race Andy Granatelli said speeds had increased to the point that the event was unsafe.

Now Granatelli, whose STP corporation ran the car Gordon Johncock drove to victory, says his team will pull out of Indianapolis and United States Automobile Club competition next year unless there are changes.

"All of us in racing must face the fact that we are simply going faster than our tracks and drivers can safely handle these flying missiles," he said Thursday. "This is not only a demand for reform but a sincere and sad plea to all of my fellows in racing to assist me in obtaining this kind of reform."

Granatelli has been involved in Indianapolis racing since 1946.

STP also sponsors entries in NASCAR stock car racing.

Granatelli said moves should be made to lower the speeds of the USAC race cars and the hazards of fire. He has urged limiting the amounts of fuel a car may carry or use in a race and fuel tanks with an extra bladder inside the normal bladder to cut down explosions.

Fines made

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pro football commissioner Pete Rozelle can fine players $200 for leaving the bench during a fight on the field, says the National Labor Relations Board.

The NLRB also said in a decision Thursday that the NFL Management Council and its 26 member clubs did not violate good faith bargaining requirements in its discussions with the NFL Players Association over artificial turf in 1971.

The board agreed with the players union, however, that the installation of artificial turf is a mandatory subject of collective bargaining because it affects working conditions.

The players association filed a grievance after Rozelle fined 106 players for leaving the benches while fights were in progress on the playing field in three 1971 preseason games.

Cambodia receives 'copters

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia AP — The U.S. government has given the Cambodian air force "a small squadron" of helicopter gunships for close air support in tight combat situations, military sources said today.

In South Vietnam, Viet Cong sappers blew up an ammunition dump 12 miles from Saigon, injuring 10 South Vietnamese soldiers and destroying 400 tons of mortar and artillery shells, authorities reported.

A normal squadron numbers about 20 aircraft. The sources said the UHI "Huey" gunships, equipped with miniguns and rockets, arrived in Cambodia Tuesday. They were used for the first time Wednesday, escorting convoys along the Communist-infested Mekong River supply corridor. Security considerations precluded disclousure until today.

Cambodian pilots trained in Thailand "are doing a really good jpb with the choppers, both flying and maintenance," one informant said. "They're doing as well as Americans would and better then the Vietnamese."

Cambodia has about 20 propeller-driven bombers, 36 Huey helicopters, 36 twin-engine transports, about a dozen spotter planes, and a new squadron of highwing monoplanes that can be used for forward air control or as gunships.

Arrival of the new gunships comes at a time when the U.S. Senate has voted to cut off all funds for continued bombing in Cambodia and Laos and when the Cambodian armed forces are undergoing a major reorganization.

However, B52s pounded suspected insurgent positions along the east bank of the Mekong River today, nine miles from Phnom Penh. The explosion in South Vietnam occurrred before dawn and ripped through the big former American base at Long Binh. The blasts continued for eight hours, rattling doors and windows in Saigon.

Helen Dunlap removed as executrix of Long's estate

BOWLING GREEN, Mo. (AP) — Helen Dunlop, the longtime secretary and companion of the late Sen. Edward V. Long, was removed as executrix of the senator's estate Thursday by a judge who said she had a conflict of interest.

Judge J. Overton Fry of Pike County Porobate Court said at the completion of two days of hearings that Miss Dunlop had sold assets of the estate and made decisions about debts without the court's approval.

"All over and above those, there is the fact that there's a real and substantial conflict between the estate and Miss Dunlop and her holdings," Judge Fry said, adding that she could make no further expenditures from the estate.

Miss Dunlop's status as executrix was challenged by Long's widow, Florence, who has also asked that his will be set aside and has filed a $3.25-million suit against Miss Dunlop, charging her with alienation of affections.

Mrs. Long and her daughter were left $10 each in Long's will, while the bulk of his estate was left to a 5-year-old granddaughter. The value of the estate has been estimated variously at between $700,000 and $2 million.

The conflict of interest allegation arose from the fact that Miss Dunlop is an officer or director of two banks—Canton State Bank of Canton, Mo., and Farmers State Bank of Greenfield, Ill.—and several other Long holdings which have claims against his estate.

During testimony Wednesday, Miss Dunlop said in answer to a question that Long's law library in Bowling Green had not been listed as part of the estate because it had not been determined whether the library belonged to the estate or to one of his companies.

"Well, judge, that's a good example of her conflict," Marion Wasinger, Mrs. Long's attorney, said.

Andy Zenge, Miss Dunlop's lawyer, said Thursday that his client would be willing to give up her interest in the law library but questioned the $19,000 price tag Long had placed on it in 1971.

Miss Dunlop was also questioned about the sale of two heifers from Long's farm without the court's approval, and she testified that the sale was executed before Long's death. Her lawyer argued Thursday that the sale of the two heifers should not be considered because they brought the estate a good price.

Long died Nov. 6, and Miss Dunlop told authorities four months later that he told her minutes before his death that he thought he had been poisoned by candy given to him as a gift.

The former senator's body was exhumed May 3 and an autopsy was performed. Last week, a Pike County coroner's jury ruled that he died of natural causes.

Prosecuting Atty. Thomas I. Osborne of Audrian County was named special prosecutor in the case after the report of possible poisoning. He said this week that there would be no further investigation of the poisoning report unless new evidence was presented.

Franklin D. Roosevelt took his fourth oath of office as president on the south portico of the White House.

CAPE GIRARDEAU— A seminar on landfill operations and solid waste disposal will be conducted in Cape Girardeau at the Holiday Inn on June 13. The seminar will begin at 9:00 a.m. and conclude about 3:30 p.m.

Tooke, Mayor of Cape Girardeau, and Clarence Suedekum of Cape Girardeau presiding Judge of Cape Girardeau County.

All county and city officials and other interested persons are invited to attend. There is no registration fee and the luncheon will be Dutch treat.

Construction bids to be opened July 12 for student union building

CAPE GIRARDEAU— Bids for construction of a four-level, 100,000 square foot student union building for Southeast Missouri State University will be opened July 12, and the university hopes work on the facility will get under way in September.

The university's Board of Regents approved final working drawings of the proposed union and set the date for the bid opening at a brief meeting Thursday.

The board also authorized $5,000 to initiate a study of computerized construction scheduling of the building which, according to David Pearce of the St. Louis architectural firm of Pearce and Pearce, Inc., might cut construction time by 20 per cent.

It is expected that construction of the building will take at least 18 months, given even the most favorable conditions.

Dr. Mark F. Scully, president of Southeast Missouri State, said there will be a 60-90 day interval from the time bids are opened until the contract is let. This period is needed, he said, to study the bids and sell the bonds with which the building will be partially financed.

It was noted that this is the first time in the current building program of the university that revenue bonds will be offered to the public. In other instances where bonds have been sold, the federal government has purchased them.

The federal government is participating in the construction of the union building through an interest subsidy grant which will provide the difference between three per cent interest and the actual rate at which the bonds are sold, up to $85,176 annually for a 40- year period.

The $3 million- plus facility will be partially financed also with about $1 million in student union funds which the university has set aside for this purpose.

The bonds will be retired by student fees and by revenue generated by the various facilities in the union.

Preliminary drawings of the proposed union, showing the floor plan and projected facilities for each level, were shown to the board last October. At that time the regents, as well as members of the faculty and student body, were asked to study them with an eye toward changes which should be made.

No major changes were incorporated into the final plans.

Facilities to be included in the union are a supply store, bowling lanes, billiard room, table tennis room, a large ballroom and a smaller party room, several meeting and conference rooms, a browsing library, a music lounge, a cafeteria and separate snack bar, and offices for various staff members and student organizations.

The union will be located on Normal Avenue between Kent Library and North Henderson where Leming Hall, a woman's dormitory, formerly stood. The dormitory was demolished last fall and site preparation for the union has been under way for a number of months but has been hampered by the wet weather.

Tornado carries check 65 miles

KENNETT — A canceled check found by Mrs. D. L. (Mary) Ford in her garden Sunday apparently was carried some 65 miles by the tornado that struck Jonesboro, Ark., and the community of Otwell, Ark., early Sunday.

Ben T. Griffin, superintendent of Delta C-7 schools at Deering, said the check belonged to his brother, whose home in Otwell was destroyed by the tornado.

Griffin said the cancelled checks were kept in a desk in his brother's home and only the top part of the desk could be found after the tornado came through the town.

Griffin said his brother's home was demolished and the family has moved into a mobile home temporarily.

Late Tuesday Mrs. G. I. Sample of 1804 Wilburn Drive, Kennett, reported she found a canceled check in her yard, written on the Bank of Jonesboro. It was a personalized check of Mrs. Kenneth Bradley of Weiner Route Two dated in 1971.

It was not learned where this check "blew in" from.

Kennett man new Baptist chairman

KENNETT — James F. Ford. a Kennett attorney, has been appointed to serve as chairman of the executive committee of the executive board of the Missouri Baptist Convention.

Ford's appointment came after a period of turmoil caused by accusations against Dr. Earl O. Harding, executive secretary of the convention. The charges dealt mainly with the overspending of Baptist funds and were brought by Dr. Tom Anderson, mayor and Baptist lay leader in Columbia, and the Rev. James W. Hackney, pastor of Maplewood Baptist Church, formerly of Sikeston, and immediate past chairman of the executive committee. The Rev. Mr. Hackney was removed from office at the request of the other 12 committee members.

The Missouri Baptist Convention is in session three days annually, at which time 51 members are elected to the executive board, the governing body which meets quarterly. The chairman of the board then appoints an executive committee, consisting of 13 members who meet monthly or whenever it is deemed necessary., which Ford will chair.

In response to the controversy regarding Dr. Harding, Ford emphatically stated that both the board and the committee have been informed and advised of the accusations and have found them to be unwarranted and without foundation.

Ford considers them to be personal attacks against the very structure of the convention. He stated, "Dr. Harding is employed and responsible to the executive board. He has served in this capacity for almost 20 years and has fulfilled his duties to the board's complete confidence."

Ford also remarked that although the records are audited annually by an independent firm, Dr. Harding has requested that another audit for the years 1970, 1971 and 1972 be made. Ford feels this action is unnecessary but to end the controversy has appointed a committee to select another independent auditing firm and has requested that this selection and the auditing be expedited.

In the past, Ford has also served as legal advisor to the executive committee and later was appointed a member.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON
By Dr. William H. Taft

FOR JUNE 3, 1973

Scripture: Exodus 20:1-2; Deuteronomy 5:32--6:3; Psalms 119:97-104; Matthew 5:17; Mark 12:12-17

WHY HAVE LAW?

For the summer months we will study God's laws for men, with the emphasis on ways these centuries-old rules apply to today's world.

Many persons today like to say that the Ten Commandments are not valid in our present society. Why they believe this is difficult to comprehend.

Some persons will claim that the Commandments have been replaced by the principle of love, a term difficult to always understand. Others will feel the Commandments are too simple for today's complex world.

In these upcoming lessons we will seek to probe the inner moral structure of men and their feelings.

Impatience is a term applied to many views on today's laws. People feel the laws aren't being interpreted properly by the highest courts. Others feel they are being viewed in a too narrow manner.

Nevertheless, the place of law in our lives today is being challenged. Even the churches are getting involved with the courts in both external and internal disputes.

Our daily newspapers report violations of the laws. Our television screens show us examples of individuals who interpret the laws in their own ways.

Henry Thoreau years ago refused to pay the poll tax. He felt the state did not possess the right to so tax a person. Today there are others who refuse to pay taxes, objecting to the use of such funds for war purposes.

Bible readers reviewing today's Scriptures might be surprised to read how the early believers of God voiced their love for the law. Here they were concerned with religious traditions, the teachings of God, and the interpretations of truth.

The persons were concerned about the commandments, testimonies, precepts, and ordinances. No doubt they recognized that with good laws society would run more smoothly and equitably.

The Bible records numerous examples of incidents when persons violated God's laws. First there were Adam and Eve and their disobedience of God's warning to them.

God's laws are basic in our lives today. If we really believe in Him we believe in everything He tells us. God intervenes in our lives under one condition: we invite Him to participate.

Early in our Bible studies we learn how God becomes involved in international affairs. The Egyptians were the strongest people in the world at one time yet God brought about their downfall.

Man needs an ultimate authority just as he needs traffic lights to carry him to work and home again safely.

God created this world. And as it becomes more and more crowded it becomes more necessary for a system of laws we can all follow and agree with. Such laws are required to provide a framework for living.

And there is no better time for God to intervene again than the present. Although one major war may be ended, peace is still far away for millions of us.

God is a teacher. Much of our time is spent in listening to what we are told to think, to do, to buy, and to believe.

Unfortunately, we don't always listen to the right sources. We are pressured by political leaders, by our advertisements, by our friends and neighbors.

Christ kept the law. He was the only one to achieve this distinction. From the New Testament we learn that "Love does no wrong to a neighbor: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law."

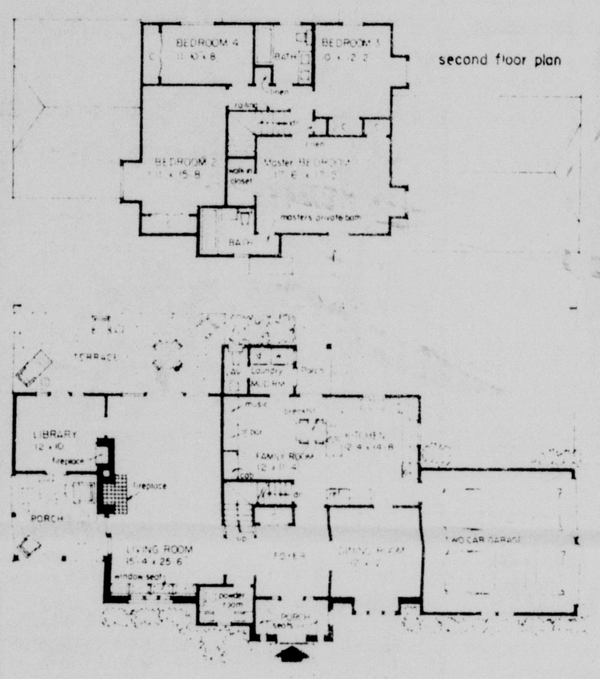
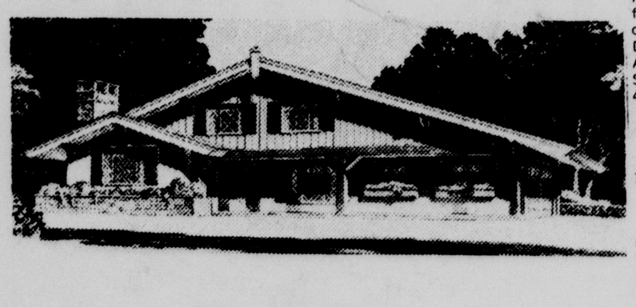
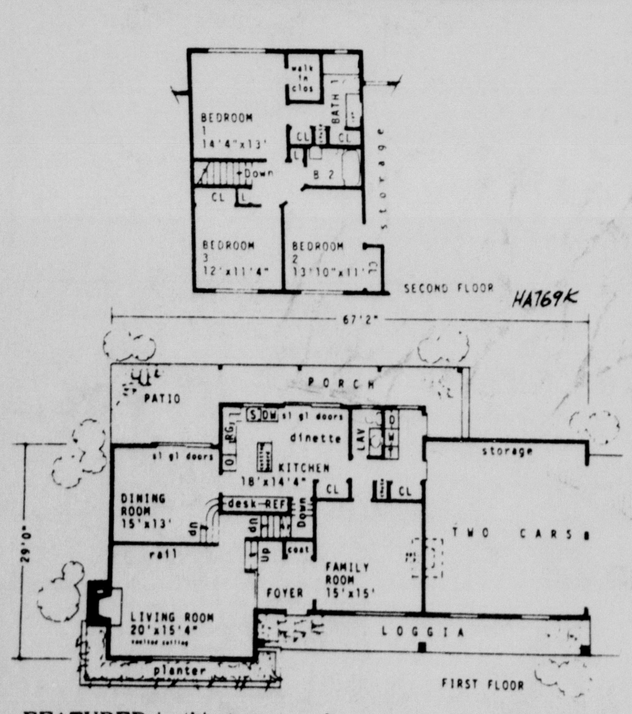
HOMES FOR AMERICANS



ENGLISH TUDOR is another of the old world types of architecture which has found a renewed popularity in the last three years. The exterior is a true representation of dignified, middle-class English. Because of its modest size it cannot support the flamboyant details of a large manor house but because of its stateliness it would always be envied in a neighborhood. Inside, a huge foyer presents a wonderful guest greeting spot as well as controlling traffic well. The big living room has three-sided exposure and entrances to the porch, library and rear terrace. It also has an 11-foot-long window seat, typical of the English design. The kitchen-family room is another luxury-size space, more than 24 feet. The second floor has all four bedrooms and two baths. Anyone interested in the cost of the blueprint of Plan HA755M can write to architect Rudolph A. Matern, 89 E. Jericho Turnpike, Mineola, N.Y. 11501.





FEATURED in this two-story home are multi-level assets of dropped dining room with the living room overlooking it and sharing the patio view to the back. Kitchen and utility area open to a rear porch and a family room is at the front. Three bedrooms and two baths have 740 square feet on the upper floor. Plan HA769K has 1,235 square feet on the main level and is designed by architect Derick Kipp, Room 505, 48 W. 48th St., New York, N.Y. 10036. Anyone interested in learning the cost of the blueprint can write to Kipp.

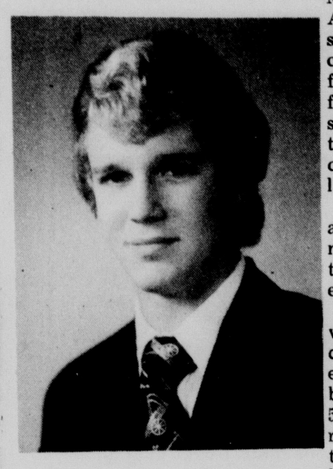
Shotgun used as entry

NEW MADRID— Ruby Stewart's Store, three miles north of Point Pleasant was burglarized Tuesday night by persons who used a shotgun to shoot a front door and window open, according to Deputy Sheriff Bo Wingo, who investigated. A soft drink machine outside the store also was shot into.

Items reported stolen were whisky, cigarettes, several pairs of women's boots, some housecoats and a carton of bubble gum. Money in a cash register was not bothered, Wingo said.

Mrs. Stewart's store was burglarized in April and three youths were arrested when some of the loot was discovered in their car after it crashed into the yard of Jack Gaddis in Point Pleasant. Gaddis is Mrs. Stewart's son.



Requalification of Ozark pilots could delay flight resumption

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "The longer the strike continues the more time it will take to get the fleet back into the air," said Calvin E. Ettel, an official of the Airline Pilots Association, which represents the 341 pilots of the strikebound Ozark Air Lines.

Although officials of both Ozark and the Aircraft Mechanics Fraternal Association, which went on strike 44 days ago, said planes could be mechanically ready for flight within no more than four days after the dispute is settled, Ettel said Thursday that requalification of pilots could extend that period to as long as two weeks.

The longer the pilots are away from flying, he said, the more retraining they will need to requalify under current experience requirements.

"A lengthy strike would work a hardship on the company as well as everyone else," he said. Negotiations between the airline and the 560-member mechanics union resumed earlier this week in the nation's capital, but there has been no indication that a settlement is in sight.

Sam Smith, president of Local 24 of the AMFA, said his members are ready for a long strike, even though the union has no strike fund to help the men make ends meet while they are off the job.

"You're not as prone to go off half-cocked," Smith said of the union's policy, adding that with no strike fund the issues have to be important before a strike is called. The dispute centers around wages, pension benefits and the use of closed circuit television in the airline's St. Louis hangar complex.

"I was aware this (the strike) would happen six to eight months before," said George Cook, one of the mechanics, "so I had been putting money in my back pocket for quite a while."

Cook said he is supporting his pregnant wife and three children on his savings, but he said many of the union members have gotten jobs.

One of them is Ian Brown, who has been an Ozark mechanic for six years. He said he got a job in the general contracting industry.

"You'd be surprised the number of guys who have gotten part-time jobs—about 80 per cent," Brown said. He saved some money before the strike, he said, and is using the parttime job to supplement his savings.

"The jobs aren't paying what we normally make, but it's enough to pay for the groceries," he said, adding, "I'm willing to stay out until I get an equitable agreement."

In the case of pilots, Ozark proposed the resumption of limited service Wednesday to some of the cities that depend solely on the airline for air transportation.

The pilots association was seeking more information on the proposal Thursday before deciding whether to agree to it. But even if a limited number of flights are resumed, only a few of the 341 pilots will be involved.

For the rest, Ettel said many have gotten part-time jobs and others are doing a lot of work around their homes.

"If I ever see a paint brush again, it will be too soon," Ettel said, noting that none of the pilots is seeking employment with another airline.

"We're in a unique position; we've pleged ourselves to this specific company," he said, explaining that to fly for another airline, a pilot would have to start from the bottom, losing all his seniority.

"It's kind of a hapless position right now," he conceded.

In an effort to pressure management and the mechanics into a settlement, Ettel said 22 pilots have begun visiting some of the 62 communities served by Ozark in 15 states, asking the residents to write the airline and union executives urging a resolution to the dispute.

For the company itself, losses due to the strike have been somewhat minimized because of a mutual aid pact between the major airlines.

The mutual aid assistance fund reportedly provided Ozark with $1,263,989 in the first 14 days of the strike, based on 50 per cent of its operating expenses. The fund also provides reimbursement for up to 35 per cent of operating costs after 28 days of the strike.

Supervisors for Arvin plant in Dexter announced

DEXTER — Selection of five key supervisory employes for the new plant to be established in Dexter by Arvin Industries was announced this week by T. I. Sparks, plant manager.

The five men, and others who will be added later, will comprise the staff responsible for getting the new facility in operation.

Keith Mills, who has been personnel manager of Arvin's plant in North Vernon, Ind., will serve in a similar capacity in Dexter. James Michael Abbott, who has been chief industrial engineer at the Franklin, Ind., plant, will be production manager. Stephen J. Collins, who has been a staff industrial engineer at the corporate offices in Columbus, Ind., will be controls manager.

Lowell W. Yoder, who has been at the Greenwood, Ind., plant since 1968, will be industrial engineering manager. James D. McClure has been transferred from the Seymour, Ind., plant as quality manager.

A native of Lafayette, Ind., Mills is a graduate of Indiana State University, where he also did graduate work. Prior to joining Arvin's personnel department at Seymour in 1966, he taught school for two years in Fort Wayne. He became employment manager at Seymour in 1967 and came to North Vernon as personnel manager two years later.

Mills and his wife Margie are members of the First United Methodist church in North Vernon, where he is a trustee. Mills is immediate past president of United Fund and a member of the Chamber of Commerce.

A graduate of Jeffersonville, (Ind.) High School, Abbott holds a bachelor of science degree in production management and industrial engineering from Indiana University. Since joining Arvin in 1963, he has served as industrial engineer, night superintendent and chief industrial engineer at the Franklin plant.

Abbott and his wife Donna have one daughter. They are members of the Lutheran church, and he also belongs to the Rotary Club.

Born in Columbus, Collins graduated from high school there and holds a degree in industrial management from Purdue University. He worked at Arvin five summers while in school and rejoined the company upon graduation in 1971. He has worked in both cost analysis and industrial engineering. He also served in the Army for three years.

Collins' wife, Mary Lynn, is a graduate of Ball State University and has been teaching in the Columbus school system.

Yoder is a graduate of Muncie, (Ind.) Central High School, holds a degree in business administration from Ball State University. Prior to joining Arvin at Greenwood as an industrial engineer in 1968, he was employed as an industrial engineer with Westinghouse Electric Corp.

Yoder's wife, Glenna, also attended Ball State University and has worked as a librarian in Greenwood. They have two daughters in grade school.

McClure is a graduate of Indiana State University and also attended Rose- Hulman Institute, Indiana University law school and Portland State University. His wife Judith, a graduate of Ball State, has been a school teacher. They have one young son.

Before joining Arvin as quality foreman at Seymour in 1971, McClure served three years in the Army as a first lieutenant, and had been employed with Allison division of General Motors in Indianapolis and Anodizing, Inc. in Portland, Ore.

Sparks announced that members of the supervisory group and their families will move to Dexter during the summer. The plant is scheduled to begin operations late this year.

What's the Law?

The case of the amazing wife

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

During the many awed years that Marvin and Cynthia were married, they continually fought the battle of the budget. And since Cynthia had no money or income of her own, she was solely dependent upon Marvin's generosity in running the home.

Nevertheless, Marvin discovered that his amazing wife had managed to purchase two income- producing parcels of property. And when he demanded to know where she had gotten the loot to do it, she clammed up and refused to part with nary a syllable of explanation.

Grabbing a pencil and his cancelled checks, frustrated Marvin quickly ascertained that during their marriage, he had given Cynthia more than $100,000 to run their home. And racing to court, he demanded that she be ordered to explain how she had spent every last penny of the household money he had given her.

"If Cynthia bought those properties out of household savings," he told the judge, "the properties belong to me since it was my money that bought them."

"That's absurd," was wife Cynthia's answer. "We've been married a long time. How am I expected to remember how I spent that money? After all, I was a housewife and not an accountant."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you require the amazing wife to account for how she had spent the household money?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that while it is doubtful that any man would have the temerity to contend that he is entitled to the full benefit of his wife's thrift and economy, probably at no small sacrifice to herself, the law says he does. Money given to a wife to run a household, noted the judge, is not a gift nor is it compensation to her for performing her wifely duties. Any such money left over belongs to her husband. Therefore, concluded the judge; Cynthia must account since, if she bought the properties out of household savings, the properties would belong to her husband. Skylab pilots sleep late

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Like most anyone on a day off, Skylab's astronauts slept late in their orbiting station today. They looked forward to the luxury of man's first space shower after a week of work in the warm laboratory.

They slept nearly three hours past their normal wakeup time and once they were up and around they had little to say to Mission Control of the first leisure day ever enjoyed by men in space.

It is one of three free days planned during the 28-day mission by Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz.

Experiments are suspended for the day. Unless there is an emergency, mission control will leave them alone, except for relaying routine messages.

Experts on the ground will continue to troubleshoot Skylab's power shortage, working on procedures for one of the astronauts to take a space walk to release a stuck solar panel.

Commander Conrad hinted Thursday night there may be at least some chores to do.

"It'll be more like a field day," he radioed. "We've got an awful lot of housekeeping to do. Things are scattered all over the place, so we'll spend some time cleaning house."

Conrad said he hoped to play orbiting tourist and snap some pictures from the window during the day. He asked the control center for the map coordinates of Egypt's pyramids and African Mt. Kilimanjaro.

One thing they're looking forward to is the shower, scheduled for late afternoon. Each will lather himself, step behind a circular plastic shower curtain and use a hand-held device to spray himself with about two quarts of water.

In the weightless environment of the space station, the water droplets were expected to cling to the curtain and the astronauts. The spacemen will suck them up with a hand-operated vacuum cleaner.

Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz have worked in 80-degree plus temperatures since boarding the station a week ago and have reported they are somewhat sweaty.

"The shower will be very welcome," Kerwin said.

Flight controller Don Puddy said the temperatures now are expected to stabilize at about 80 degrees in two or three days. They were as high as 125 degrees until the astronauts raised a makeshift sun shade to protect an exposed section of the laboratory from the blistering rays of the sun.

Conrad talked of the scheduled free time in a preflight interview.

Prairie and again after returning to town, Zook allegedly went to the Johnston home at 401 S. Martin St. with a shotgun.

Johnston, his brother, Bryan Johnston, and Carol Scott had driven up in front of the Johnston home when Zook approached in his car. Zook reportedly said he was going to kill the Johnstons, opened his car door and pointed the shotgun toward them. Johnston took a .22 rifle from the car and fired several shots at Zook's car, one of which struck Zook.

Johnston was arrested by East Prairie police officers Lyle Scott and Jim McAfee at the scene.

House-Senate committee compromise

$75,000 cut from budget

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Shortly before 2 a. m. Friday, the joint House-Senate appropriations conference committee approved the third bill since negotiations on the state's budget began Wednesday.

The 10-member conference committee was deadlocked for most of Thursday on $10,000 for operating the governor's mansion, and cuts the House members wanted in the Office of Administration.

Finally both sides agreed to give Gov. Christopher S. Bond $40,000 to operate the mansion in return for cutting $75,000 from salaries in the Office of Administration. The cut leaves $2.29 million for salaries and an appropriation of $3.4 million.

Funds for administering merit system employes in the Office of Administration were not cut.

Included in the bargain was $28,000 restored to the budget of the state auditor making that total appropriation $1,233,177.

Everything else in the $700 million appropriations bill covering spending by the executive branch and elected state officials was agreed on with little difficulty after funds for the Department of Revenue were resolved.

The committee cut $70,000 from the $88.3 million revenue budget. But they granted a 5 per cent salary raise for all employes plus an additional 5 per cent for some supervisors and auditors.

After approving the revenue funds Thursday afternoon, the committee appropriated $500,000 for National Guard salaries to cover the cost of their duty in the event of further flooding.

The committee cut $100,000 from the state Tourism Commission budget for advertising leaving them an appropriation of $694,338.

They cut funds for the Council on the Arts to $654,920, after the House had approved about $1.2 million and the governor recommended $1.3 million.

The committee also agreed to appropriate $1.7 million for the public defender system with $430,000 of that amount to be held in a contingency to cover anticipated errors in the estimated costs submitted by circuit judges from all over the state.

The committee still has four appropriations bills to negotiate, including the capital improvements bill yet to be heard by the Senate Appropriations Committee and approved by the Senate.

The total figure for all appropriations is about $2 billion.

With the exception of the capital improvements bill, the legislature must send the other appropriations bills to the governor by midnight June 8, next Friday.

The Senate Appropriations Committee will begin hearings on the improvements bill today.

The conference committee is set to resume bargaining at 1 p. m. Saturday.

Watergate testimony conflicts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of the present and former top officials in government are telling very different stories about their mutual connections with the Watergate scandal.

And Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, says he has read secret White House documents that disclose a "Gestapo mentality" existed at the highest levels of the Nixon administration.

Ervin's comments at a news conference in Winston-Salem, N.C., Thursday were the strongest he has made about the explosive issues uncovered by the broadening Watergate investigation.

The top-secret papers he was discussing surfaced when fired White House Counsel John W. Dean III told a federal judge he had taken them from the White House.The judge gave the North Carolina senator a copy. They are a blueprint for domestic espionage, but President Nixon said the plan was never implemented because the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, objected to it.

"It would be a great shock to the American people" if the contents of the papers are made public, Ervin said, adding that he plans to ask the nation's intelligence agencies for their recommendations regarding release of the documents.

The Watergate committee chairman, a Democrat, said the papers detail White House plans to set up "an interagency operation to spy on Americans, especially those who disagreed with the administration."

Since the disclosure several weeks ago that the Central Intelligence Agency may have been pressed into Watergate-related service, a number of congressional watchdog committees have launched separate, secret inquiries into the activities of America's official espionage agency.

The resulting testimony has pitted former top White House aides against the highest echelons of the CIA and FBI.

As related by some of the officials themselves and by members of various committees, here are some of the conflicts that have shown up in recent sworn testimony behind closed doors:

—Gen. Robert E. Cushman Jr., former deputy director of the CIA and now commandant of the Marine Corps, said that John D. Ehrlichman asked him by phone on July 8, 1971, for CIA assistance to E. Howard Hunt, since convicted in the Watergate conspiracy.

Ehrlichman, then President Nixon's domestic-affairs adviser, said he never made the request, told Cushman so and the general deleted his name from a memo recounting the incident. Cushman said Thursday that he has since checked his records and reaffirmed that Ehrlichman was the caller, adding: "I do not regard Mr. Ehrlichman's position and mine as being necessarily contradictory."

—Ehrlichman, presidential chief of staff H.R. Haldeman, CIA Director Richard Helms and Helms's deputy, Army Lt. Gen. Vernon A. Walters, met at the White House on June 23, 1972, to discuss the CIA and the break-in six days earlier at Democratic headquarters in the Watergate.

Helms and Walters said the CIA wasn't involved in Watergate and the FBI's investigation of the incident wouldn't hurt the agency or compromise any of its other covert activities.

Walters said the White House officials, since resigned, sent him to see acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III to tell Gray the FBI's Watergate-related investigation of a Mexican money deal could jeopardize CIA operations.

Ehrlichman said Helms and Walters didn't give "a flat assurance" that the CIA wouldn't be hurt by the FBI probe.

Haldeman said there was "no intent or desire to impede or cover up any aspect of the Watergate investigation itself."

—Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of one of the subcommittees looking into the matter, said Haldeman and Ehrlichman were in substantial agreement with each other but their accounts were in "serious conflict" with the Helms, Walters and Gray versions of the White House meeting and subsequent Gray-Walters encounter.

—McClellan's counterpart on the other side of Congress, Rep. Lucien D. Nedzi, D-Mich., said: "We have two versions under oath that are not consistent." He called for a Justice Department review of the testimony, which could lead to filing of perjury charges against one or more of the congressional witnesses.

—Both Ehrlichman and Haldeman blamed Dean for reported efforts to get the CIA involved in the scandal. Dean has said a move is under way to discredit him before his testimony exposes other top people involved.

Western movie and singing stars Roy Rogers and Dale Evans are the stars of the 1973 Sikeston Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo. Roy and Dale will appear at each performance of the rodeo from August 9 through 12.

Waste disposal up to residents

A new city ordinance on solid waste disposal will go into effect June 30 and will bring about widespread changes in how Sikeston residents will dispose of their garbage.

Basically, the law prohibits open burning and requires that all garbage be placed in a sealed, water- tight container and be disposed of in a sanitary landfill.

City Manager Jim Huff said the city is not planning to go into the collection business. The city ordinance was passed to bring the city into compliance with new state environmental regulations. Also, Huff said the city does not plan to collect the fees, preferring to leave that up to individual garbage collectors.

Specifically, the law requires that garbage cans must be provided for all solid waste except bulky rubbish and demolition and construction waste. Garbage cans must be provided for all houses and apartments and all institutions, businesses and industrial and agricultural establishments within the city limits.

Residential garbage cans must contain space for between 20 and 35 gallons of garbage. They must be leakproof, waterproof and fitted with a fly- tight lid. The cans must be covered at all times. They must have handles or some other way of making them easy to lift.

Garbage cans must have tapered sides for easy emptying and must be light weight so that the can and the garbage combined do not exceed 75 pounds.

The cans may be made of galvanized metal, rubber or fiberglass. Plastic cans may be used if the plastic does not become brittle in cold weather. Disposable plastic bags may be used if they are kept in a container for storage. They may be removed from the container and placed by the curb at collection times.

Commercial containers basically follow the same restrictions as those applying to residential garbage cans, except the weight and size limits are removed.

Tree limbs must be less than four inches in diameter and put in bundles not larger than 48 inches long and 18 inches in diameter. The weight of the bundle must not be more than 75 pounds.

Yard wastes such as grass clippings, tree trimmings and leaves must be kept in leak proof containers. Compost piles are permitted under the ordinance.

Tree limbs and yard wastes must be placed at the curb or alley, or at the rear of the building for collection. They must not be placed at collection points until the regularly scheduled collection day. Empty containers must be removed from the street after they have been emptied.

Bulky rubbish will be collected by a contract collector or private collector at the request of the person responsible for it. The fee will be based on the size, weight and type of rubbish collected.

All residential garbage, other than bulky materials, will be collected at least twice weekly with a mimimum interval of 48 hours between collections.

It will be illegal for any person to deposit solid waste in any garbage can other than his own, interfere in any manner with waste collection equipment, burn solid waste, dispose of solid waste at any facility or location which is not approved by the city and state divisions of health, or engage in the garbage collection business without a private collector's license issued by the city.

All garbage collected must be transported in a covered and watertight truck. It must be disposed of in an approved sanitary landfill. One is scheduled to open near Morley about the time the law goes into effect.

The city manager's office will issue notices for any violation discovered and will inform the violator of the corrective measures to take. If the corrective measures are not taken, the violator is liable for fines up to $500 for each day's violation.

Stamp program effective July 1

Scheduled registration for the Food Stamp Program ends today at the Scott County Welfare Department office, 312 E. Center St., but registrations will continue to be accepted after this time, according to Mrs. Cathleen Gipson, county welfare director.

Persons whose last names begin with S, T, U, V, W. Y, Y, and Z were scheduled to sign up today. Hours at the welfare office are from 8 a.m. to noon and 1 to 5 p.m.

The food stamp program will take effect July 1, replacing the commodity program, but the first food stamps will not be issued until July 5. Under the food stamp program, food is purchased at the grocery stores by the individual persons, which was not the case under the commodity program.

Food stamps may not be accepted for purchase of alcoholic beverages, tobacco, meats or foods labeled as imported, pet foods, toiletries, bottle deposits, household goods and foods prepared for consumption on the premises.

The food stamps can be used to pay the sales tax on eligible foods.

The grocer may not give credit to the new customer on the promise of future payment, and coupons must be torn from the book in the presence of the cashier.

To figure the monthly coupon allotment, the family's net income must be determined by the welfare office. When this is done, a table is used to relate the net income to the number of persons in a household. There is a monthly coupon allotment for each family size. The monthly cost of stamps to the family is determined by the net income.

The accompanying table is used by the welfare department to determine the monthly coupon allotment for each family under the food stamp program. The program becomes effective July 1.

To read the table, the net income is figured and located in the left column. Then the number of persons in each household is located in the column across the top of the table.

By following the horizontal line from the net income to where it meets with the vertical line from

Roy Rogers signs for rodeo

Roy Rogers and Dale Evans, King and Queen of the west have signed to appear at each performance of the 1973 Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo in Sikeston, Aug. 9-12, Larry Miller, 1973 rodeo chairman, announced today.

Also appearing with Rogers and Miss Evans will be Dusty Rogers, Jr., the only natural son of Rogers, and the well- known country and western vocal group, the Sons of the Pioneers.

Holding more box office records in rodeo and state fair appearances than any team in the entertainment industry, Rogers and Miss Evans remain in high demand. Guest appearances on television programs, starring in state fairs and rodeos, plus devoting additional time such projects as Roy Rogers Family Restaurants, and the Roy Rogers Museum, are a few of the activities in their busy life.

Rogers was named "Honorary American Indian of the Year" by the American Indian Exposition, being a member of the Choctaw tribe.

Rogers drew the largest attendance in the exposition's history. In 1967 Miss Evans was named "California Mother of the Year."

Rogers recently received the Pioneer Award from the manufacturers of Western products in acknowledgment and appreciation for his contribution to western life.

The pair have signed the 155- year- old- American Bible Society's Christmas letter for the past several years and the number circulated has risen from 51 million the first year they signed the letter to 132 million in 1971, proving their ever- increasing popularity with the public. Rogers and Miss Evans were made honorary life members of the society in 1970, being the only stars from the entertainment industry to ever be honored.

Voted into Madison Square Garden's Hall of Fame, Rogers set an all- time one- day record there bringing $119,000 through the box office. Rogers and Miss Evans hold nine all- time box office records at the famed Houston Rodeo, including the largest crowd ever to see an indoor rodeo-- 42,884 people in one performance at the Astrodome.

Rogers was selected by the Round Table International as Honorary Knight for Life and Miss Evans as a Lady of Camelot. The citation, bestowed only 18 times previously in 30 years and never before to show business personalities, recognized them for distinguished service to humanity and to their country in the field of clean entertainment, of unselfish and effective leadership in service of homeless and orphaned children, and to the mentally retarded, and as volunteer entertainers to the armed forces.

Dale and Roy are well known for their adoption of orphans and for more than 5,000 charitable appearances. They are the only show business couple to receive a national citation from the American Legion. Other awards include one to Miss Evans as "Woman of the World" from International Orphans, Inc. and "Church Woman of the Year" from Religious Heritage of America.

Rogers has starred in 90 feature motion pictures, many of them with Miss Evans as his co- star, and was rated the number one Western star for 12 consecutive years. The pictures are still playing in theatres throughout the world and all were syndicated for domestic and foreign television.

Their radio and television shows achieved high ratings on three different networks, and they are currently preparing a Roy Rogers- Dale Evans Country and Western variety series for early release. Rogers and Miss Evans will star in three specials during 1972 and 1973.

Rogers and Miss Evans toured Vietnam in 1967 in their son Sandy's honor and memory. That was where he twice requested assignment to duty before his death in the U.S. Army in Germany in 1965.

Current activities include a multitude of projects in which they are individually or jointly active. Rogers has recorded three new contemporary albums for Capitol records in Nashville, Tenn. Miss Evans has also recorded three new contemporary albums for Capitol in Nashville. Miss Evans' three religious albums include: "Get To Know The Lord", "It's Real" and "Faith, Hope and Charity" and are all released by Word Records.

Rogers and Miss Evans were married Dec. 31, 1947. Both of their previous spouses died earlier. They have reared a family of nine children and have 15 grandchildren.

Rodeo Queen to be crowned here Saturday

The 1973 Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo Queen will be crowned Saturday at Kingsway Plaza Mall following a personality and beauty contest beginning at 5 p.m.

The queen's duties will be to ride in the grand entry parade during each rodeo performance, make persoanl appearances throughout the Sikeston area, ride in parades and appear on radio and television broadcasts to promote this year's rodeo.

149 Bootheel children tested

Lead poisioning no problem

Childhood lead- based paint poisoning does not exist as a major problem within the Bootheel, according to findings of a recent survey conducted to screen young children between the ages of one and six.

The survey was conducted through the efforts of the Bootheel Regional Planning Commission's Comprehensive Health Council, Delta Area Head Start Program, Missouri Division of Health District 4 and the Burea of Community Environmental Management of the U.S. Public Health Service.

The survey to assess the occurrence of lead- based paint poisoning, was unique in that it was the first such survey to be conducted in the nation exclusively with a rural area. All previous assessments have been in urban areas, particularly in urban blighted areas.

One hundred and forty-nine children were initially tested, using the finger prick method utilizing basically one drop of blood (micro analytical technique). Of the 149, two children were identified as having elevated blood lead levels. The two children will receive further tests and if required will be referred for diagnosis and treatment.

In addition, the homes of the two children will be tested to determine the possible source of lead in either the interior or exterior surfaces of the house. Walls and other surfaces will be tested with a portable wall lead analyzer utilizing the x-ray flourescence principle so multiple readings can be taken within a short time and without any damage to the house surface or coatings.

Although the survey showed no major problem exists, parents should be alert and take precautiosn to prevent small children from being poisoned by lead paint. Never allow your child to eat paint or plaster and be alert for several of the symptoms of lead poisoning, such as decreased appetite, irritability, clumsiness, unwillingness to play, headache, abdominal pain, drowsiness or vomiting.

State may maintain Scott roads

BENTON— Gary D. Chegwidden of Sikeston, designer for the State Highway Department, discussed the possibility of the state maintaining certain roads in the county at Thursday's Scott County Court meeting.

The court submitted a list of five roads to Chegwidden it would most like the state to take over.

Mentioned was the road running from Blodgett to Highway 77 and continuing on the road from Morley from Route H to Highway 77. This would complete the base- line road from east to west, which is part of Highway 91 and part of Routes C and D. Another road submitted was the road one mile north of Perkins from Route T in Scott County to Highway 77, with a portion to run from Crowder east of McMullin to highway 61, crossing 61 and continuing east to Interstate 55.

The court also expressed the hope that the highway department will consider taking over Route M to the Nash Road.

Chegwidden said that a decision cannot be made until a traffic count was made on the roads, then checking to see if right of way is available. The state requires at least 80 feet of right of way which would have to be available before it takes over any road.

According to Presiding Judge Les D. Lankford, the program is similar to one which was started in 1950 when the farm to market roads were established.

Mrs. Cathleen Gipson, director of the Scott County Welfare Department, asked the court which days the county courtroom would be available for people to come in and sign up on the food stamp program.

The court told Mrs. Gipson that June 19 and June 26 could be made available.

Mrs. Gipson said persons unable to come in to apply may send someone in their place but would have to sign something saying they wanted to sign up. She also said anyone physically unable to come in may call the welfare office, a representative will be sent to the home.

The court accepted the lowest bid submitted on a new dump truck for the county from Sikeston Motor Co. for $15,947. The other bid submitted was by Cooney Equipment Co. of Sikeston for $17,014.42.

Sheriff John Dennis thanked the court for its cooperation over the weekend during the overflow of water in the Chaffee area.

CORONATION PLUS 20

It rained almost all day long in London on June 2, 1953. Still, a million Britons stood shoulder to shoulder in the streets with visitors from around the world. Some had camped on the sidewalks for two days in order to hold a favored spot to watch the coronation procession of Queen Elizabeth II -- then a 27- year- old mother of two. In a two- and- one- half-hour ceremony, the new queen promised "to govern the peoples of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Ireland, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, the Union of South Africa, Pakistan and Ceylon ... according to their respective laws and customs."

Queen Elizabeth II will celebrate her birthday, as well as the 20th anniversary of the coronation on Saturday, June 2. Actually, the queen was 47 years old on her real natal day of April 21. Commonwealth nations celebrate the queen's birthday whenever it is convenient and it is a moveable holiday in Britain, as well, traditionally held early in June. The anniversary is marked by the Trooping of the Color and an annual garden reception. The queen chooses the day to announce her honors list -- a semi- annual event in which the British aristocracy gets a transfusion of middle- class blood.

The royal family remains immensely popular in Britain and a major reason is the pleasure people derive from make- believe. Opinion polls show that many Britons believe the queen sets standards of family and personal behavior in Britain. While there are rumors that the queen gets lonely while Prince Philip roams the world, their marriage is said to be a happy one.

Much of the public's attention has switched to Charles, the Prince of Wales. Charles automatically becomes king on the death of his mother. However, she can step down in favor of her son at any time. Charles appears to relish his role and has said "I feel that there is a great deal I can do if I am given the chance to do it." Perhaps the queen will be thinking of that as she looks back 20 years to the day when she sat on the throne in Westminster Abbey and King Edward's six- pound crown was fixed on her head. (R.C.D.)

Alaska, our second youngest state and one still with a frontier spirit, is a stronghold of independent thought. It seems hundreds of Alaskans are now signing petitions asking the President and Congress "to grant us our land free and independent sovereignty, under the auspices of the United Nations ..." One of the projections of the Alaskan secession would be a return to a gold standard. As one supporter explains, an independent Alaskan nation could set the price of gold at $150 an ounce, make gold mining flourish again and "... back up our currency with gold..."

Not even imaginative Alasakns can possibly visualize what might happen if they become a separate nation operating on a gold standard. The promise of monetary stability alone would likely create an immigration problem for Alaska that would inundate the state.

The Alaskan secession proposal may be impractical, but the possibilities it presents are intriguing to those of us who are weary of international money- juggling and other games played with our economy.

Things have reached the place in Washington with the Watergate scandal that we really wonder whether those who have confessed to what they have done, can be punished. There is so much governmental power protecting so many people, it seems really questionable whether anybody can be punished. And the silliest thing we can think of is that the President was not aware of what was going on. At least, there are powerful persons in the government who maintain he did not know -- and he says he didn't.

WHAT THE GRAND JURY IS AND WHAT IT DOES

The Watergate affair is focusing national attention on a federal grand jury in Washington, D.C., which is investigating the case. U.S. News & World Report explains what a grand jury is and what it does as follows:

What is a grand jury?

A grand jury is a special panel of citizens set up not to try people but to decide whether a person should be brought to trial. Its primary function is to protect people against unjustified prosecution in court.

How does a grand jury operate?

A government prosecutor presents evidence, witnesses are interrogated, and the grand jury then decides if there is probable cause to believe the suspect has committed a crime. If so, the grand jury issues an indictment.

What is an indictment?

An indictment is merely a formal accusation, a charge on which the grand jury recommends that the accused be tried. It is not a conviction.

Is an indictment required before any criminal case can be prosecuted?

No. But the Fifth Amendment to the U.S. Constitution requires that "no person shall be held to answer for a capital, or otherwise infamous, crime, unless on a presentment or indictment of a grand jury" -- except in military cases. That has been interpreted as requiring a grand- jury action in all federal criminal cases in which a conviction could mean a prison sentence of more than one year. About half the States use a similar procedure. Other States use a so- called criminal information -- a formal charge by a prosecutor -- instead of a grand jury indictment.

How is a federal grand jury set up?

It is ordered by a judge, usually at a prosecutor's request. Members are chosen at random from voter lists. A federal grand jury may have 16 to 23 members. The votes of 12 or more members -- a majority -- are required for an indictment.

Is a grand jury proceeding governed by the same rules as a trial court?

No. There are no strict rules. A witness may be asked almost anything. Hearsay evidence is admissible. The aim is to establish only "probable cause" for trial -- not to convict.

Who may be present at a grand jury session?

Usually, only the attorneys for the government, the witness being examined, and the official stenographers reporting the proceedings. When the grand jury is deliberating or voting on indictments, nobody other than the jury members may be present.

May a witness refuse to answer a grand jury's questions?

Yes. He may claim his constitutional privilege against self- incrimination. In case of dispute, a court will decide whether the claim is proper. A witness who refuses to answer a question ruled proper can be held in contempt of court.

What if a prosecutor grants a witness immunity from prosecution?

If a witness refuses to talk after receiving immunity, he could be jailed for contempt.

Does a suspect have a right to appear before the grand jury?

Not an absolute right. But he may be allowed -- and can be compelled -- to do so. The suspect cannot force a grand jury to hear witnesses he wants to testify in his behalf.

Are grand jury proceedings secret?

In most cases, yes. Prosecutors and members are not supposed to discuss the proceedings outside the jury room. A witness may discuss his testimony outside the jury room, however, unless restricted by a judge's order.

Why this secrecy?

The aim is to encourage witnesses to testify without fear of publicity or retaliation and to protect the independence of the grand jury.

Why has the grand jury system recently been criticized?

Critics charge that grand juries are sometimes used by prosecutors to conduct improper investigations, to "rubber stamp" unjustified accusations, or to intimidate political dissenters.

FOREIGN INVESTMENT HYPOS DOMESTIC JOBS AND TRADE

An exhaustive new study by Union Carbide Corp. shows that its foreign investments have resulted in more exports from the U. S. and more jobs in the U. S. then would have been the case had the investment not been made.

These and other findings, detailed in a comprehensive report released recently, are in direct conflict with recent charges by critics of the so-called "multinational" corporation that overseas investments by U. S. corporations are weakening the domestic economy and contributing to the nation's unemployment problem.

The survey revealed that Union Carbide's U. S. exports increased as its overseas investments expanded. In fact, from 1951 to 1970, the dollar growth of the corporation's exports from the U. S. signficantly out paced that of its affiliated foreign manufacturing operations, increasing 7- fold in 20 years. This was attributed largely to the "pull" effect which affiliated overseas manufacturing exerts on U. S. exports.

Union Carbide's vice-president for international affairs, George C. Wells, describes the "pull" phenomenon this way: "While the establishment of a plant within a particular foreign market obviously reduces U. S. exports of the specific product manufactured by the new plant, this loss of exports is more than offset by the resultant increase in U. S. exports of allied, intermediate or accessory products."

The report credited the "pull" effect with more than a half billion dollars in U. S. export sales from 1951-70 over and above what the corporation would have realized if it had not invested aboard during this period. In terms of domestic employment, this translates into nearly 2,000 additional export- related U. S. jobs within Union Carbide alone which otherwise would not exist.

WELL-EARNED AWARD

No one is more deserving of the L. M. Graves Memorial Award than Dr. Bland Cannon, a Memphis Neurosurgeon and one of the founders of the Mid-South Medical Center Council. He received the honor Thursday night from the MMCC at its annual banquet.

The award, named after a former superintendent of the old city health department, recognizes outstanding contributions to health care in the Memphis area.

The MMCC was formed in 1966 largely through Cannon's efforts. His goal was to eliminate fragmented planning and the competition of special interest groups for authority over isolated segments of the health industry. Ultimately, he hoped, the quantity of health care could be increased without reducing its quality. At a time when the system of health services is under pressure for major reforms, Cannon's leadership has been a steadying influence and a promising sign that the medical profession can help the system adapt to changing needs without breaking down.

JUST TOO MUCH NOISE

An Inebriat dreaded the tongue - lashing from his wife that invariably accompanied his return home in the early morning hours.

So, one night after a long session with the boys, he returned home and made a bee-line for the garage where he found a suitable length of rope. He took the rope to the kitchen and tied skillets, pots and pans to the rope and then fastened the rope around his waist and headed for the stairway to where his wife was sleeping.

"This ought to work 'cause she will never hear me in this infernal din!"

OUR PRIMARY OBJECTIVE

The daily headlines relate the growing scandal in Washington. They are headlines that bode no good for the nation and the body politic, but they shall pass. In the meantime we, the people of Republic USA, must get on with the job of making our nation the best in the world. Perhaps it would be better to say "keeping it the best." We have the incentive and the natural resources to improve our lot and the lot of all mankind. Let us work together to produce and defend.

Our main enemy is still the communist conspiracy. It exists to a degree within our own ranks at home and it is still a potent force in other nations. Be it at home or abroad, communism has but one aim, and that is to destroy us as a nation and as individuals. We are still on top as a free, constitutional Republic. The profit- motive system of doing business is the envy of the world, even the communist world. Despite the evil of inflation and government control, we have prospered and we have set the pace in most fields of endeavor. We are strong in the fields of science and the arts and above all in the practice of hard work. Our goals, if set in the right direction, can all be attained if we dedicate ourselves to the proposition of improvement.

No, the nation is not going to collapse, despite the gloomy headlines. It is a time when our enemies should not underestimate us nor should we underestimate ourselves. Let us defend ourselves at home and abroad against communism and the internal forces of corruption. The constitution has not let us down. We must not let it down. HLH

Could Control Nation: Hoffa Plans Ellsbert Strategy To Challange White House

WASHINGTON — Sweating it out luxuriously in a West Coast spa much of this past month, white- soxed Jimmy Hoffa followed the Ellsberg-Pentagon Papers theft trial avidly, reportedly voiced approval at the judge's abrupt dismissal of all proceedings and determined to consult one of the three defense attroneys--- Leonard Boudin of New York City.

Off and on counselor Boudin has been a favorite of Hoffa's for a decade or so--- one of a hundred such lawyers in what the trade has called "Jimmy's own bar association." But few of them have ever done so well by the former all- powerful Teamsters' general president as Boudin did for the admitted purloiner of classified Defense Dept. and Rand think- tank documents. Hoffa believes he needs just such an attorney to challenge President Nixon's bar on his "direct or indirect management" of a labor organization until March 1980.

There's far more fundamental significance to Jimmy Hoffa's ambition for a re-seizure of the vast Teamsters Brotherhood than the ego of this ex-convict, this friend of men identified by federal authorities as Mafiosi, a man often talked of as a complex of brutish physical instincts.

There is far more here than Hoffa's low-key feud with incumbent general president Frank "Fitz" Fitzsimmons. The issue it seems to me is control of a massive labor organization, the nation's largest, which is at the inner gears of America's distributive system. Hoffa learned this well from his early days at the side of Leon Trotsky's American representative, Farrell Dobbs, in the '30s in Minneapolis.

Few really have looked deeply into the Teamsters organization. It is now more than 2.2 million strong. It reaches from the California salad valleys to the Atlantic fisheries by way of more than 900 locals.

Its cash on hand (in banks) on Jan. 1, 1973, was well over $23 million. It has an income of over $41 million annually. It dominates pension funds running into the billions --- and uncounted health and welfare cash flows which easily hit a billion dollars a year.

It has vast real estate holdings in addition to its $5 million headquarters here. Its "airfleet" cost over $3.5 million -- not counting its pilot and co-pilot. And there is its fleet of cars.

And it pays its officials well. The general president receives $125,000 annually. And an office-house near here which rents at an estimated "$4,000" annually. Its secretary- treasurer gets $100,000 yearly.

Because of the AFL-CIO'S feud with Mr. Nixon and the administratiom, the Teamsters are in a powerful position as the labor force in residence.

This is a powerful political, financial and social vehicle for any man to control. Hoffa wants the big wheel so he can centralize the general president's power. In his hands it could become the most powerful "civilian" force in the land --- perhaps a total force. Under Fitzsommons the power has been decentralized. The regions' conferences have become almost autonomous baronies, constituencies, call them what you will. They coordinate at collective bargaining time, which is now. I don't believe there will be a master freight haulers strike when the national contract expires June 30.

But if there would be a countrywide strike, that would be the day the nation would begin standing still. In a few weeks there would, in effect, develop a general strike, the most awesome of its kind.

So the jousting for the leadership of the Teamsters is not any esoteric battle. Therefore it is fascinating to watch Fitz and his advisers strip Hoffa's allies of their power. The Hoffa bloc is led mostly by Hoffa's "angel" of some 25 years standing --- Teamsters fourth vice president Harold J. Gibbons. First Gibbons was moved out of the directorship of the central states conference; then he was stripped of the airline division. Last week, after some easy reading of the handlettering on the wall, Gibbons "emotionally" quit as secretary- treasurer (eminence grise) of Teamsters Local 688, which covers the city of St. Louis and six counties. He also left the regional joint council and some other posts. And took other officials with him.

He is still, however, a $55,000- a-year Teamsters vice president. In 1972, his expense account ran to $16,958.15. He won't starve. He's in until 1976--- elected by the '71 convention.

By tradition, should he take the hint (word is that the Teamsters' general executive board was about to put his home local 688 under trusteeship) and quit as national vice president, he would retire on pensions, local and national, totalling upward of $100,000 a year. The Teamsters are generous when it comes to money. Mrs. Josephine Hoffa earns $48,000 annually as director of the Ladies Auxiliary of DRIVE (Democrats, Republicans, Independent Voter's Education). And Hoffa's "adopted son" Charles "Chuck" O'Brien gets $25,000 annually and over $5,000 in allowances as a general organizer.

Gibbons slipped out quietly--- few of his few friends left inside the Teamsters knew he would resign at a local membership meeting. Thus Jimmy Hoffa and Gibbons are a lonely intimate bloc. Not even Gibbons's old friend Frankie Sinatra is around. Hoffa does manage to get a local or two (such as Local 250 Teamsters, Pittsburgh) to invite him for a speech. But he's not quitting. Just sweating it out. Readying to challenge the President and the government by running for president of his old home Detroit Local 299--- of which Fitz still is vice president. Perhaps counselor Boudin could do for Hoffa what he did for Ellsberg--- get the government off his back. It's all well worth watching--- for the nation, that is.

JACK ANDERSON SAYS: Nixon's Waterbug Cover-up Meant to Protect Plumbers

WASHINGTON -- If the Watergate prosecutors had their way, the anticipated indictment of the White House conspirators (1) would indicate President Nixon helped to cover up the illegal operations of his subordinates and (2) would suggest that his possible involvement should be investigated further.

The prosecutors have raised the presidential question in a careful, confidential memorandum, which discusses the options for dealing with evidence against the President. The final decision will be up to special prosecutor Archiblad Cox, who is now in charge of the case.

As we reported on May 25, Assistant Attorney General Henry Patersen previously had reminded the prosecutors that the President was not on trial. Petersen had instructed them specifically not to inquire into the personal conversations between the President and his lawyer.

This attitude from above had an inhibiting effect upon the prosecutors, although Petersen assured us he had not intended it. They missed several opportunities to inquire into the President's involvement and, indeed, seemed reluctant to bring up his name. But in more recent weeks, they have pulled no punches.

CAN'T PRETEND

The secret, sworn testimony has produced absolutely no evidence that the President was implicated in the Watergate burglary and bugging. But sorces close to the investigation tell us the prosecutors can no longer pretend that he was innocent of the cover-up.

With the aid of these sources, we have 'put together the case against the President. It is based on testimony both published and still secret.

By his own account, President Nixon tried to set up an antisubversive operation, headed by the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, to deal with "grave" security threats. This extraordinary, extralegal squad would have been empowered to break into the quarters of security suspects.

When Hoover would have no part of this, the plan was abandoned. But subsequently, the President established his own para-police unit, known as "the plumbers," inside the White House. Two of the plumbers, G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt, broke into the offices of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist in Los Angeles in September 1971.

NIXON'S ORDERS

The same pair also masterminded the Watergate burglary, which culminated in their arrest the following June. The President immediately instructed aides H. R. Haldemand and John Ehrlichman "to insure" that the Watergate investigation didn't expose "the activities of the White House investigative unit."

The prosecutors believe Nixon's motive was more to hide the undercover activities of the plumbers who had his blessing than to protect the Waterbuggers who did not. But the Watergate investigation threatened to uncover the Liddy- Hunt operation, which would lead straight to the plumbers team.

Haldeman and Ehrlichman would have had difficulty protecting the plumbers without also covering the Watergate tracks. The available evidence indicates they made little attempt to separate the two Liddy- Hunt projects.

First, the White House pair tried to confine the investigation to the five men who had been arrested inside the Watergate. Haldeman and Ehrlichman, proclaiming it "the President's wish," even tried to get the CIA to intervene with the FBI to limit the investigation.

HUSH MONEY

Once Liddy and Hunt were ensnared in the Watergate conspiracy, according to the sworn testimony, Haldeman and Ehrlichman arranged to funnel hush money by a devious route to the defendants to buy their silence.

The President's personal attorney, Herb Kalmback, was enlisted. He drew a reported $75,000 from chief fund raiser Maurice Stans, another $60,000 from White House counsel John Dean. Kalmbach also raised $75,000 from Northrop Aviation executives.

He was instructed to pay the money to a New York undercoverman, Anthony Ulasewicz, who allegedly distributed it to the defendants. The testimoney shows that Kalmbach, troubled over these subterranean arrangements, went to Ehrlichman for reassurance. Ehrlichman solemnly swore to Kalmbach, according to the testimony, that he was acting in the national interest.

President Nixon has cited "national security" as his reason for wanting to conceal the activities of the plumbers. Even after he ordered a full Watergate investigation last March, he gave secret orders to Henry Petersen not to expose the plumbers' operation. He loosened up on this order only after both Petersen and then - Attorney General Richard Kleindienst threatened to resign.

WEAK CLAIM

The President's claim of "national security," in the prosecutors' opinion, is weak. Little attempt was made, in all the clandestine White House operations, to separate political security from national security.

As far back as 1969, Haldeman ordered Kalmbach to pay Ulasewicz out of political funds. Unknown to Kalmbach, Ulasewicz devoted most of his efforts to digging up dirt on Democrats, including Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass.

Haldeman and Ehrlichman directed not only Ulasewicz's political espionage, according to the testimony, but the plumbers' security espionage as well. Both Liddy and Hunt, along with the other plumbers, were paid by the taxpayers for their illegal activities.

Later, Liddy and Hunt were assigned to the President's campaign committee. Campaign funds were also used to finance the cover-up of the plumbers' operation, which the President ordered for security reasons.

The President will have trouble, in other words, distinguishing where politics ended and security began.

NEW YORK (AP) — Maybe I'm a male chauvinist pig. Maybe I'm not a male chauvinist pig.

But whether or not I am, I'm tired of being called one by a lot of strident women who ought to be tossed into the town pond as common scolds.

A lot of men I know are also getting annoyed by being denounced as male chauvinist pigs by a pack of female harridans who wouldn't be pleased by a man if he were a cross between Sir Galahad and St. Francis.

Because of a courtesy to the fair sex learned at my mother's knee — the lesson was applied with the back end of a hairbrush — I wouldn't refer to these shrewish ladies as female chauvinist pigs.

But female they are — and chauvinists they are. The dictionary defines chauvinism as "undue partiality or attachment to an ideal or cause."

I submit that a majority of the women of America themselves recognize that some of these apostles and their claims are ridiculous, hysterical and downright laughable. Some of these female chauvinists seem to want not equality with men but outright war between the sexes. I don't think the ordinary American woman wants to be without a man or, having him, to make a war between them. The goal is one of mutual affection and respect — and fun.

But what is puzzling to most men is a new type of hybrid female emerging from the women's liberation movement.

She is the type who wants to exact from a man the gallantries of the past but at the same time insist on her right to compete with him on fully equal terms in the career field.

Even if she is trying to take his own job away from him, she expects him too —

Push her way through the revolving door as they enter the office building.

Let her enter the elevator first.

Let her get out of the elevator first.

Defer to her during office conferences.

Watch her flaunt sex in a way he can't.

Let her have the first cab he can hail on a rainy day, if they leave the office at the same time.

Light her cigarettes at office functions.

Reach for the tab first if they have a business luncheon.

Yes, she is woman — he is man. Even though she is after his very bread and butter, he can't treat her as a rival. Politeness is forced on him by every tradition of the past.

What can a man do to deal with the underhanded tactics of this new hybrid type of woman he now confronts more often every year?

The truth is that it is all so new to him the average man.

Widdows bound over to Circuit Court

CHARLESTON— A preliminary hearing Thursday for O'Neal Widdows of East Prairie before Magistrate T.J. Brown Jr. resulted in Widdows being bound over to Circuit Court on a felonious assault charge.

Widdows is accused of exhibiting and flourishing a dangerous and deadly weapon, a .22 caliber rifle, in the presence of Bob Haddock of East Prairie on April 30.

Robert McCaw of Charleston waived a preliminary hearing on felony charges of burglary and stealing, stemming from the April 11 break- in at the home of Mary Hopson of Charleston and the theft of a .22 caliber revolver and a small coin purse, and was bound over to circuit court for a June 12 appearance. McCaw remains in custody in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Attorneys were appointed for Leslie Allen Achter for representation on two separate charges of burglary and stealing, filed Wednesday by Prosecuting attorney W. Clifton Banta Jr.

Achter, who was sentenced to 15 years in the state penitentiary recently on burglary and stealing charges in connection with the break-in at the Bobby Johnson home in Anniston, is now charged with a break- in on Dec. 10, 1972 at the Fred Tidwell home.

Achter is also charged with breaking into the Rickie Carr home on Dec. 10, 1972 and stealing a 30- 30 rifle and a .22 caliber pistol.

A preliminary hearing for Clyde Watson of Charleston, charged with possession of controlled drugs, was continued to June 14. Watson is free on $5,000 bond.

A preliminary hearing was scheduled for June 21 for Billy Wayne Grisso of Charleston. Grisso is charged with burglary and assault with intent to kill in connection with an assault on Mrs. Elizabeth Webb on May 4. A second charge of burglary stems from a break-in at the Mississippi County Courthouse the same day and the theft of a tear gas gun from the office of Sheriff W.J. "Pedro" Simmons.

Preliminary hearing for Jimmie Darrell Hicks of Sikeston, charged with burglary and stealing in connection with the theft of $20 from the home of Harry Keener in Charleston on April 28, was continued to June 7 for resetting.

June 14 was set as preliminary hearing date for George W. Bailey on a driving while intoxicated charge. Continued to June 14 was a preliminary hearing for Mike Harvell, charged with tampering with a motor vehicle.

Jim Davis of Charleston was given a 30 day suspended jail sentence and fined $116 on a driving while intoxicated charge. He was also fined $25 on a careless and reckless driving charge and placed on one year probation.

Ann Landers

Girl embarrassed by retarded brother

Dear Ann Landers: Our neighbors have a retarded son. He is about 12 or 13 years old but his behavior level is around five. He is a very sweet child, pleasant and polite, but it is apparent he is mentally defective.

The reason I am writing is that his 15- year- old sister is ashamed of the lad and doesn't want her boy friends to see him. She is afraid it will damage her socially. When she brings boys home from school she insists that her brother stay in his room, out of sight.

The parents insist they don't want their normal children to suffer because of the retarded child, so they have gone along with the girl's request. My husband I think it is appalling. Please state your views, Ann. We know they read your column every day.--- Problem In Iowa

Dear Iowa: The girl's attitude was shaped long before she had boy friends, and it is a sad commentary on the upbringing she received from her parents. That young lady should have been taught many years ago that her brother is a very special child and he needs extra love and understanding. I hope those parents will check their phone book for the address of the local Chapter for Retarded Children and request their literature. They need educating. If there is no local chapter, the National Headquarters is 2709 Avenue E, East, Arlington, Texas 76011.

Dear Ann Landers: That quick- thinking wife from Richmond with the recipe for Hungarian Goulash on the flip side of the newspaper clipping of her good- looking "committee acquaintance" was lucky. It could have been a recipe for Cantonese Bird's Nest Soup. Of course, any dolt-headed husband who ventures into a woman's handbag in search of housekeys, instead of taking the simpler expedient of kicking the door down, would swallow anything.

But I do admire the gal's nimble- footedness. Machiavelli would have wanted her on his team. A recipe for Hungarian Goulash indeed! Paprika for the mind!--- Skeptical Paul From Montreal

Dear Paul: Your letter gave me mental indigestion. Where's your faith, man?

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are so mad we could chew nails. We bought a new car 17 months ago. It cost us a lot more money than we had a right to pay, but we decided it would be cheaper than a second- hand model in the long run. We've had that new car in the garage three times since January. The last repair bill was $45. Please don't tell us to take it back to the dealer. We tried. He isn't interested in complaints. Just trades or sales. What can we do? Will the customer EVER get a break when it comes to car repairs?--- Squeezed By A Lemon

Dear Squeezed: Contact the Better Business Bureau and give them chapter and verse. They do a splendid job of making people straighten up and fly right. Let's hope that one day we Americans will get the same break the consumer gets in Sweden. Garages must guarantee all repair work for 3,125 miles or three months--- whichever comes first. Wouldn't that be beautiful?

Confidential to Winds At Northwestern: Never mind about HIM--- I'm interested in YOU. Please tell me how a guy who can't spell "grateful" and puts a "d" in "congratulations" and two "e's" in judgment got into Northwestern. As for your "problem," it sounds like that of a Yale guy who moved to Evanston.

The dinner was held at the Baptist Church and was followed by the memorial service which honored men of the armed forces and former Blodgett natives who have died since the 1972 memorial.

Mayor Don Hurst was master of ceremonies and the Rev. Jimmie Edmondson, pastor of the Baptist Church, conducted memorial services.

A veteran ceremony was held until 2:30 p.m. at the Veterans Monument. The names of gold stare men who have died were read while Deborhah Russell played the accordion and her daughter Cheryl sang a patriotic song.

National Guardsman from Company C 1140th Engineers Battalion at Sikeston gave the military salute. Guardsmen included: Staff Sgt. Glenn Jones, Staff Sgt. Hershel Price, Spec. 4 Mike Wheeler, Spec. 4 Robert Moore and Spec. 5 Dale Keith. The veterans faced the monunent and saluted during ceremonies.

The program ended with the singing of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "Old Auld Lang Syne". The Rev. Mr. Edmondson gave the Benediction.

Unemployment rate holds at 5 per cent for May

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate, still failing to respond to the economic boom, held stubbornly at five per cent of the work force in May, the government said today.

The Bureau of Labor Statistics said the U.S. job picture was essentially unchanged since last November although the economy was in the midst of one of its most vigorous expansions in history during that period.

As in April, the number of people that the bureau counted out of work totaled 4.4 million. The work force remained at 84 million, the bureau said. The figures were adjusted to take seasonal job patterns into account.

Actually, there was a small decline in total unemployment, but the drop was about in line with the usual job picture from April to May, the bureau added.

The report cast new doubt on whether the Nixon administration will be able to bring the jobless rate to the range of 4.5 per cent by year's end, as it has forecast. The administration now is trying to slow the economy down, a policy that would tend to push the unemployment rate up.

AFL-CIO President George Meany, commenting on the monthly figures, said that while the unemployment rate was remaining at 5 per cent "inflation continued at a rapid rate, profits skyrocketed, interest rates climbed sharply, speculation continue unchecked and corporate executives received more than ever."

Meany called this a "dismal record" and said it "is the direct result of administration economic policies which are inequitable and unfair to workers."

Herbert Stein, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, noted that total civilian employment rose by about 100,000 in May, much less than the average of 300,000 per month from November to March.

"This is another piece of evidence, along with earlier reports on sales and new orders, to suggest that the pace of economic expansion has at least temporarily subsided from the unsustainable and highly inflationary rate of previous months," Stein said.

The bureau said that the number of unemployed persons who had lost their last job was 1.6 million, the lowest point since April 1970.

The report said the average hourly earnings of production or nonsupervisory workers went up by two cents to $3.84.

Average weekly earnings increased $1.12 to $142.46, primarily because of the increase in hourly earnings and a small rise in the work week.

13 injuries treated

Two area traffic accidents Thursday resulted in injuries to three persons, according to the highway patrol.

A three-car accident at 3:40 p.m. at the junction of Highways 60 and 61 at the south city limits of Sikeston injured two.

The accident occurred when a car driven by Geneva Stewart, 59, of New Madrid was making a left turn to go south on High 61 and was struck in the right side by a car driven east by Albert Mier, 71, of Cairo, Ill. The Stewart car then struck a northbound truck driven by Samuel Binford, 59, of Sikeston.

Mrs. Stewart received a shoulder injury and a passenger in her car, Lena Bodi, 75, of New Madrid sustained a chest injury. Both were taken to Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston.

John David Wheeler, 17, of Jackson received a possible back injury at 3:15 p.m. when two miles west of Jackson on Highway 34 when his motorcycle came up behind a car driven by Nola Irene Henry, 54, of Jackson which was stopped in the westbound lane Wheeler applied his brakes, lost control and struck the auto from behind.

Clarkton to receive revenue sharing funds

CLARKTON — The City of Clarkton will receive $12,952.34 in revenue sharing money which has been appropriated under federal guide lines for health, sanitation and street improvements.

Areas where priorities for using the revenue sharing money exist were discussed at length at the last meeting of the Board of Aldermen, and it was determined that the greatest area of need was in the three fields selected.

The city has obligated $2,500 toward spraying for mosquitoes and other disease carrying insects. The mosquito problem has become prevalent since the heavy rains, and numerous Clarkton residents have requested that the city spray for mosquitoes. As the result of these requests the funds have been allotted.

The lack of proper sewer drain-offs was another priority problem, and the board has committed $3,000 to rehabiliate and install new drain-offs for the city.

Street improvement has long been a necessity. The town is growing and many old streets need improvements. A total of $8,469.34 has been obligated for street improvements, based on the present amount of revenue sharing money.

Individuals or groups are invited to offer other plans for expenditure of the revenue sharing money, under federal guidelines, for better use of the funds.

Senate members ham it up at first live broad cast

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — If the first live radio broadcast of the Missouri Senate did not have the drama of the Watergate hearings, it wasn't because the senators weren't trying.

After they noticed the big directional microphone of KMOX radio station in St. Louis peering at them from over the president's chair Thursday, they launched in an hour and one-half of oratory on a minor bill.

The two-hour broadcast "prolonged debate on the bill for an extra hour", said Sen. A. Clifford Jones, R-Brentwood.

He said he offered one amendment in fun just to see if another senator would respond. The senator did, for about 10 minutes.

After a number of senators had spoken, Sen. Lem T. Jones, R-Kansas City, said:

"Is there any senator in KMOX-land who hasn't talked yet? Has anybody been missed?"

The bill being debated would require teachers to have extra schooling to help them recognize problems of exceptional students. Jones of Kansas City called it one of "these silly bills" in which government would be laying down specific educational requirements. He facetiously offered an amendment to have all the legislators take the same training.

Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, spent the entire two hours in the president pro tem's chair, although he normally lets others assist in the chore of presiding. He turned it over to another senator just after the broadcast ended.

Asked if the microphone made any difference, Cason said, "I didn't notice any difference. We made fine progress."

News reporters who normally cover the Senate noticed the senators were speaking louder than usual, especially when a roll call vote was taken.

It was also observed that a senator who often appears to doze during debate stayed awake during the two-hour period. But afterwards he was seen with his head sideways in one hand, eyeglasses pushed high upon the forehead.

After the broadcast ended, narrator Bob Hardy was approached in the hallway by a smiling Sen. Edward Stone, R-Chesterfield. "I just got a call from St. Louis. They heard me on KMOX," Stone said.

Hardy said that while the senators may have hammed it up a bit, they probably would not be so conscious of the microphone after several broadcasts. He said radio listeners "eat this up," and noted the station had covered important committee hearings earlier this session.

The broadcast Thursday was offered to five other radio stations, Hardy said. He called it a lesson in government that allowed listeners to more fully understand the legislative process.

Sen. Albert Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, who often speaks on the bills, would not do so Thursday, saying "no way."

"Just what I thought would happen did," Spradling said. He predicted that with more live coverage, "We'll never pass another bill."

EIGHT COUNTIES HAVE 100 AIRPORTS

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — A $1.5 billion aviation industry is centered in the eight-county Southwest Metroplex, a 6,214-square-mile area around Dallas and Fort Worth.

The area supports some 100 airports and more than 75 miles of runways.

Eighteen foreign airlines have offices in the Metroplex, and nine regular airlines and seven commuter lines make more than 800 flights daily.

TORONTO (AP) — The St. Lawrence Seaway is the quietest, cleanest and cheapest highway in Canada.

An engineering report by Ken Gilbert of the Toronto Harbor Commission said that the cost of the full 2,000-mile route was no greater than the cost of building 29 miles of expressway.

NHL stars

MONTREAL (AP) — The Montreal Canadiens, the 1972-73 National Hockey League Stanley Cup champions, placed three players on the NHL AllStar first team, the NHL announced today.

The Canadiens, who finished first in the East Division, then defeated Buffalo, Philadelphia and Chicago for the Stanley Cup, placed goalie Ken Dryden, defenseman Guy Lapointe and left winger Frank Mahovlich on the NHL's first team.

Defenseman Bobby Orr and center Phil Esposito, both of the Boston Bruins, joined Mickey Redmond of the Detroit Red Wings in rounding out the team.

Dryden, a second-team goalie in 1971-72, topped the balloting with 238 points followed by Orr's 236. It was the sixth straight year that Orr has made the first team after being a second-team choice in his rookie season.

The Chicago Black Hawks, first-place finishers in the West who lost the Stanley Cup final series in six games to Montreal after posting early round victories over St. Louis and New York, were represented on the NHL's second team by goalie Tony Esposito, defenseman Bill White and left winger Dennis Hull.

Bobby Clarke, the Philadelphia center who recently was chosen the leagues Most Valuable Player, Yvan Cournoyer, recipient of the Conn Smythe Trophy as MVP in the Stanley Cup finals, and defenseman Brad Park of the Rangers were the other second-team selections.

Baseball roundup

"I throw hard and Willie Stargell swings hard," said Gary Gentry, "so if he hits the ball it stands to reason it's going to go a long way."

Stargell hit the ball hard, and it went a long way Thursday night.

Pittsburgh's veteran slugger blasted a three- run homer against the Atlanta right- hander in the bottom of the eighth inning, spoiling an otherwise neat job by Gentry and lifting the Pirates to a 3- 1 victory over the Braves.

The homer was Stargell's 14th this season, tops in the major leagues. It also was a tape measure job, landing in the upper deck of Three Rivers Stadium, an area reached only three times before--- each of those times by Stargell.

Nellie Briles, who doesn't have to worry about pitching to Stargell, earned the victory with a three- hitter.

Elsewhere in the slim National League schedule, Chicago battered Houston 16- 8 and Cincinnati edged St. Louis 3- 2.

In the American League, California nipped Boston 7- 6, Minnesota trimmed Milwaukee 4- 2, Oakland blanked New York 6- 0, Texas defeated Cleveland 9- 5. Kansas City beat Baltimore 4- 1 and Chicago trounced Detroit 10- 2.

Cincinnati ended St. Louis' winning streak at eight games, beating the Cardinals on a home run by Joe Morgan.

Morgan's sixth homer of the year snapped a 2-2 tie in the sixth inning to beat Bob Gibson, 3- 6. He had doubled in the fourth when the reds scored their first two runs.

Lou Brock had a two- run homer for the Cardinals.

Jose Cardenal and Carmen Fanzone each drilled two- run singles in a 10- run Chicago explosion in the first inning as the Cubs blitzed Houston.

All of the Cubs runs were unearned with Doug Rader's two- out error opening the gates. Randy Hundley singled home a run during the first inning rally and added a home run in the fifth. Rick Monday also homered for the Cubs.

Jesus Alou and Tommie Agee homered for Houston.

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) — Assistant football Coach Robbie Franklin of Western Kentucky University has resigned his post to take a coaching job at Georgia Tech, Western officials said Monday.

Franklin will be joining the staff of head Coach Bill Fulcher as coach of the specialty and kicking teams.

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Both attendance and mutuel handle records were broken at the AkSar-Ben race track Monday as Haveago won the $25,000 added King's Handicap.

Attendance was 29,599 or about 4,000 more than on Memorial Day in 1971. Mutuel handle was $1,711,150, about $45,000 more than on July 5, 1971.

Haveago, owned by Kenneth Opstein, a South Sioux City, Neb., insurance man, and ridden by J. L. Lively, paid $6.80, $3.60 and $4. Canadian Jeff of the Van Berg stable paid $5.20 and $4.20 and Haveago's stablemate Mambrino ran third in the Opstein entry.

Weiskopf first

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Tom Weiskopf has two big pluses going for him.

"I'm playing about as well as I ever have," he said after his brilliant, course record- matching 65 in Thursday's first round of the $200,000 Kemper Open.

The other plus — Jack Nicklaus isn't there.

Nicklaus, who scored a comfortable, front running victory over runner- up Weiskopf last week in Atlanta, isn't competing. He's the only man able to handle the streaking Weiskopf in recent weeks.

While his seven- under- par effort tied the course record at the 7,219- yard Quail Hollow Country Club layout, he needed every stroke to stay in front of youthful Lanny Wadkins. Wadkins, the Byron Nelson winner, had a 66.

At 67 were Ken Still, Mac McLendon, Bert Green, Leonard Thompson and red- headed rookie Pat Fitzsimons.

Arnold Palmer, coming off a one- month layoff, and Australian Bruce Crampton, a three- time winner this year, headed a group of more than a half dozen at 68 as the touring pros took advantage of near- perfect golfing weather to make a mockery of par.

More than half the field of 147 matched or bettered par 72 and there were 60 in sub- par figures.

Among them were 61- year- old marvel Sam Snead, 69; Lee Trevino, 70; and defending Kemper champion Doug Sanders, 71.

Gary Player, the little South African, making only his second start of the season in the United States, could do no better than 75 and must improve if he is to qualify for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

Here are the top first round scores:

Weiskopf	32-33-65
Wadkins	33-33-66
B. Greene	30-37-67
Still	32-35-67
Fitzsimons	34-33-67
McLendon	33-34-67
L. Thompson	33-34-67
Ziegler	34-34-68
Bohen	34-34-68
Palmer	34-34-68
Crampton	34-34-68
Geiberger	35-33-68
Yates	33-35-68

Cards- Royals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cincinnati braked the St. Louis Cardinals' winning streak at eight games Thursday night while Kansas City struck early to gain a series split with Baltimore.

Joe Morgan keyed the Reds' 3-2 triumph over Bob Gibson, 3-6, and the Redbirds. Morgan's sixth home run in the sixthe provided the winning run after the little second baseman had doubled in Cincy's two- run rally in the fourth.

The Royals stopped Baltimore, 4-1, as Gene Garber posted his fifth victory in six decisions and Amos Otis ripped a two- run single in the first.

Otis delivered after Oriole starter Mike Cuellar had walked the bases full with none out. Singles by Otis, John Mayberry and Kurt Bevacqua accounted for the other Royal runs in the seventh.

Don Baylor's third homer of the season in the seventh brought the O's their lone run.

Lou Brock's two- run blast in the fifth got the Cardinals on the scoreboard against Ross Grimsley, who scattered seven hits and boosted his record to 5-4.

Reggie Cleveland, 4-4, is scheduled to start for the Cards tonight when the Houston Astros move in for a weekend series at Busch Stadium. Larry Dierker will be seeking his first decision for the Astros.

Indy 500 reform

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The crowds were gone, the cars were being put on trailers and taken away, the drivers were gone, but the mud, trash and memories lingered at Indianapolis Motor Speedway Thursday.

The 57th edition of the Indianapolis 500-mile race turned out to be the toughest in history to get run. Twice it was washed out and four times it was marred by tragedy with a driver and a crewman dying, two drivers injured seriously and 10 spectators hospitalized.

Twenty-four hours after the race finally ended in the rain at 332½ miles, Speedway Supt. Clarence Cagle said he wasn't sure where to start with the cleanup of the 539-acre plant.

Many of the areas in the infield used for parking on race day are a quagmire, and the nine-hole gold course in the infield area is more than grass in many places.

Hotels, restaurants, airlines, school officials and police found Thursday generally just a normal business day after the hectic events of the early part of the week.

Although hotels and motels and restaurants had turnaway business for two extra days because of the rain postponements, almost everyone was happy to see it over.

There were manpower problems at the Speedway, both inside and out.

By Tuesday only 72 Speedway guards were on duty, compared with 180 Monday. The number fell to 57 Wednesday.

Those people are privately employed by the Speedway, but the police outside-directing traffic and handling the huge throngs of visitors and campers—are not.

There were 600 Indianapolis policemen on duty Tuesday, but the force was cut to 100 Wednesday morning. Winston Churchill, Indianapolis police chief, said 100 more policemen were placed on duty when word came the race would be run.

A number of officers worked 40 straight hours.

Mayor Richard G. Lugar, noting that the Speedway does not offset city expenses relating to the Indy race, said, "I'm sure we'll have to re-evaluate the given extremities of the situation. All the burdens involved and the turmoil that was caused by the postponements this year."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Before this year's accident-jinxed Indianapolis 500 race Andy Granatelli said speeds had increased to the point that the event was unsafe.

Now Granatelli, whose STP corporation ran the car Gordon Johncock drove to victory, says his team will pull out of Indianapolis and United States Automobile Club competition next year unless there are changes.

"All of us in racing must face the fact that we are simply going faster than our tracks and drivers can safely handle these flying missiles," he said Thursday. "This is not only a demand for reform but a sincere and sad plea to all of my fellows in racing to assist me in obtaining this kind of reform."

Granatelli has been involved in Indianapolis racing since 1946.

STP also sponsors entries in NASCAR stock car racing.

Granatelli said moves should be made to lower the speeds of the USAC race cars and the hazards of fire. He has urged limiting the amounts of fuel a car may carry or use in a race and fuel tanks with an extra bladder inside the normal bladder to cut down explosions.

Fines made

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pro football commissioner Pete Rozelle can fine players $200 for leaving the bench during a fight on the field, says the National Labor Relations Board.

The NLRB also said in a decision Thursday that the NFL Management Council and its 26 member clubs did not violate good faith bargaining requirements in its discussions with the NFL Players Association over artificial turf in 1971.

The board agreed with the players union, however, that the installation of artificial turf is a mandatory subject of collective bargaining because it affects working conditions.

The players association filed a grievance after Rozelle fined 106 players for leaving the benches while fights were in progress on the playing field in three 1971 preseason games.

Sophomore catcher Dan Smith, Dexter, was the only Northeast Missouri State University baseball player selected to the MIAA All-Conference first team last weekend. The announcement was released by league coaches Saturday after a meeting in St. Louis.

Smith, chosen as a utility man on the 1972 first unit, batted only .260 this spring, but he compiled a .455 average in the final two weeks of the season. The stocky backstop smashed four home runs to lead NMSU and the MIAA.

He paced the Purple and White with 12 runs- batted-in and four stolen bases. Smith tied for team high with 34 total bases, 12 runs, and one triple.

The new summer archery leagues are now forming at Six Gold Archery Range, 603 David Blvd., Sikeston.

Two leagues will be starting Tuesday, June 5 at 7:30 p.m. and Wednesday, June 6 at 7:30. These will be open for target archers. The Thursday night league is for archers using hunting bows only. Additional information may be obtained by calling 471- 6870.

Watkins, pitching for the National Guard, had a shutout Thursday night against Bank of Sikeston turning them back 5- 0 in Sikeston Fast Pitch Softball. Lambert had the loss.

In the following game, Ziegenhorn took a 6- 2 win from Probst. Garrett threw the winning game, and Cook was the losing pitcher.

OTTAWA (AP) — About 100 athletes from five countries will compete here July 1 in one of five Pacific Conference Games to be held in Canada this summer.

Competitors from Canada, Japan, the United States, New Zealand, and Australia will take part in track meets in Toronto, June 27-28; Saskatoon, July 2-3; Montreal, July 4; and Victoria, July 7.

Developed by the Japanese Track and Field Association in 1969 the games are held every four years.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Eddie Read, director of publicity for San Diego's Del Mar Throughbred Club, died Monday of a heart attack suffered while working in his garden. He was 56.

Read had been active in Southern California racing circles for nearly 40 years and had been associated with Del Mar since 1937.

Cambodia receives 'copters

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia AP — The U.S. government has given the Cambodian air force "a small squadron" of helicopter gunships for close air support in tight combat situations, military sources said today.

In South Vietnam, Viet Cong sappers blew up an ammunition dump 12 miles from Saigon, injuring 10 South Vietnamese soldiers and destroying 400 tons of mortar and artillery shells, authorities reported.

A normal squadron numbers about 20 aircraft. The sources said the UHI "Huey" gunships, equipped with miniguns and rockets, arrived in Cambodia Tuesday. They were used for the first time Wednesday, escorting convoys along the Communist-infested Mekong River supply corridor. Security considerations precluded disclousure until today.

Cambodian pilots trained in Thailand "are doing a really good jpb with the choppers, both flying and maintenance," one informant said. "They're doing as well as Americans would and better then the Vietnamese."

Cambodia has about 20 propeller-driven bombers, 36 Huey helicopters, 36 twin-engine transports, about a dozen spotter planes, and a new squadron of highwing monoplanes that can be used for forward air control or as gunships.

Arrival of the new gunships comes at a time when the U.S. Senate has voted to cut off all funds for continued bombing in Cambodia and Laos and when the Cambodian armed forces are undergoing a major reorganization.

However, B52s pounded suspected insurgent positions along the east bank of the Mekong River today, nine miles from Phnom Penh. The explosion in South Vietnam occurrred before dawn and ripped through the big former American base at Long Binh. The blasts continued for eight hours, rattling doors and windows in Saigon.

Helen Dunlap removed as executrix of Long's estate

BOWLING GREEN, Mo. (AP) — Helen Dunlop, the longtime secretary and companion of the late Sen. Edward V. Long, was removed as executrix of the senator's estate Thursday by a judge who said she had a conflict of interest.

Judge J. Overton Fry of Pike County Porobate Court said at the completion of two days of hearings that Miss Dunlop had sold assets of the estate and made decisions about debts without the court's approval.

"All over and above those, there is the fact that there's a real and substantial conflict between the estate and Miss Dunlop and her holdings," Judge Fry said, adding that she could make no further expenditures from the estate.

Miss Dunlop's status as executrix was challenged by Long's widow, Florence, who has also asked that his will be set aside and has filed a $3.25-million suit against Miss Dunlop, charging her with alienation of affections.

Mrs. Long and her daughter were left $10 each in Long's will, while the bulk of his estate was left to a 5-year-old granddaughter. The value of the estate has been estimated variously at between $700,000 and $2 million.

The conflict of interest allegation arose from the fact that Miss Dunlop is an officer or director of two banks—Canton State Bank of Canton, Mo., and Farmers State Bank of Greenfield, Ill.—and several other Long holdings which have claims against his estate.

During testimony Wednesday, Miss Dunlop said in answer to a question that Long's law library in Bowling Green had not been listed as part of the estate because it had not been determined whether the library belonged to the estate or to one of his companies.

"Well, judge, that's a good example of her conflict," Marion Wasinger, Mrs. Long's attorney, said.

Andy Zenge, Miss Dunlop's lawyer, said Thursday that his client would be willing to give up her interest in the law library but questioned the $19,000 price tag Long had placed on it in 1971.

Miss Dunlop was also questioned about the sale of two heifers from Long's farm without the court's approval, and she testified that the sale was executed before Long's death. Her lawyer argued Thursday that the sale of the two heifers should not be considered because they brought the estate a good price.

Long died Nov. 6, and Miss Dunlop told authorities four months later that he told her minutes before his death that he thought he had been poisoned by candy given to him as a gift.

The former senator's body was exhumed May 3 and an autopsy was performed. Last week, a Pike County coroner's jury ruled that he died of natural causes.

Prosecuting Atty. Thomas I. Osborne of Audrian County was named special prosecutor in the case after the report of possible poisoning. He said this week that there would be no further investigation of the poisoning report unless new evidence was presented.

Franklin D. Roosevelt took his fourth oath of office as president on the south portico of the White House.

CAPE GIRARDEAU— A seminar on landfill operations and solid waste disposal will be conducted in Cape Girardeau at the Holiday Inn on June 13. The seminar will begin at 9:00 a.m. and conclude about 3:30 p.m.

It is being sponsored and presented by the University of Missouri Extension Division and Southeast Missouri County Officials Forum. This is an annual workshop conducted by the University personnel and county officials.

Participants in this year's seminar will be: Robert Robinson of Jefferson City of the Missouri Division of Health; John Heaglen, of Rolla, professor of engineering, University of Missouri- Rolla; Ed Lutzen, of Rolla Division of Geological Survey; and Thomas G. Tucker of Perryville SeMo Regional Planning Commission.

Construction bids to be opened July 12 for student union building

CAPE GIRARDEAU— Bids for construction of a four-level, 100,000 square foot student union building for Southeast Missouri State University will be opened July 12, and the university hopes work on the facility will get under way in September.

The university's Board of Regents approved final working drawings of the proposed union and set the date for the bid opening at a brief meeting Thursday.

The board also authorized $5,000 to initiate a study of computerized construction scheduling of the building which, according to David Pearce of the St. Louis architectural firm of Pearce and Pearce, Inc., might cut construction time by 20 per cent.

It is expected that construction of the building will take at least 18 months, given even the most favorable conditions.

Dr. Mark F. Scully, president of Southeast Missouri State, said there will be a 60-90 day interval from the time bids are opened until the contract is let. This period is needed, he said, to study the bids and sell the bonds with which the building will be partially financed.

It was noted that this is the first time in the current building program of the university that revenue bonds will be offered to the public. In other instances where bonds have been sold, the federal government has purchased them.

The federal government is participating in the construction of the union building through an interest subsidy grant which will provide the difference between three per cent interest and the actual rate at which the bonds are sold, up to $85,176 annually for a 40- year period.

The $3 million- plus facility will be partially financed also with about $1 million in student union funds which the university has set aside for this purpose.

The bonds will be retired by student fees and by revenue generated by the various facilities in the union.

Preliminary drawings of the proposed union, showing the floor plan and projected facilities for each level, were shown to the board last October. At that time the regents, as well as members of the faculty and student body, were asked to study them with an eye toward changes which should be made.

No major changes were incorporated into the final plans.

Facilities to be included in the union are a supply store, bowling lanes, billiard room, table tennis room, a large ballroom and a smaller party room, several meeting and conference rooms, a browsing library, a music lounge, a cafeteria and separate snack bar, and offices for various staff members and student organizations.

The union will be located on Normal Avenue between Kent Library and North Henderson where Leming Hall, a woman's dormitory, formerly stood. The dormitory was demolished last fall and site preparation for the union has been under way for a number of months but has been hampered by the wet weather.

Reynolds was cited for his assistance from June 1939 through December 1972, first as a member of the Board of Supervisors and later as the president of the St. Francis Levee District of Missouri. In these capacities, Reynolds was praised for his "innumberable contributions" to the Flood Control and Water Resources Development Programs of the Corps throughout the lower Mississippi Valley.

Tornado carries check 65 miles

KENNETT — A canceled check found by Mrs. D. L. (Mary) Ford in her garden Sunday apparently was carried some 65 miles by the tornado that struck Jonesboro, Ark., and the community of Otwell, Ark., early Sunday.

Ben T. Griffin, superintendent of Delta C-7 schools at Deering, said the check belonged to his brother, whose home in Otwell was destroyed by the tornado.

Griffin said the cancelled checks were kept in a desk in his brother's home and only the top part of the desk could be found after the tornado came through the town.

Griffin said his brother's home was demolished and the family has moved into a mobile home temporarily.

Late Tuesday Mrs. G. I. Sample of 1804 Wilburn Drive, Kennett, reported she found a canceled check in her yard, written on the Bank of Jonesboro. It was a personalized check of Mrs. Kenneth Bradley of Weiner Route Two dated in 1971.

It was not learned where this check "blew in" from.

Doctor-nurse team opens Steele clinic

STEELE — A young couple from Thailand has arrived at Steele to open the Steele Medical Clinic.

Dr. and Mrs. Gritte Supattanasiri Wednesday held an open house at the clinic, inviting community residents to drop by and become acquainted.

Anticipating pronunciation problems, the new doctor has suggested residents shorten him name to "Dr. Gritte," pronounced with two syllables.

Dr. Supattansiri's wife is a registered nurse with a bachelor's degree in nursing and plans to assist her husband in the clinic, in addition to caring for their daughter, Grittiya, who will be three this summer.

Although the Supattanasiris are from Thailand, where he received his medical degree in 1964, he is a native of China, but left the mainland when he was eight years old.

After coming to the United States, he interned at the West Suburban Hospital, Oak Park, Ill., and took a year's surgical residency at Michael Reese Medical Center in Chicago, followed by three years of surgical residency at Columbus-Cueno Medical Center in Chicago.

He recently completed specialized training in cancer surgery at the Memorial Hospital for cancer and allied diseases in New York.

Dr. Supattanasiri holds a surgeons certification from the American Board of Surgery.

In July the surgeon expects to be joined by a partner, Dr. Passakorn, who is a pediatricain who also specializes in internal medicine.

Dr. Supattanasiri said he chose to locate in Steele after being told of the need for additional medical personel as well as the excellence of the county hospital.

Kennett man new Baptist chairman

KENNETT — James F. Ford. a Kennett attorney, has been appointed to serve as chairman of the executive committee of the executive board of the Missouri Baptist Convention.

Ford's appointment came after a period of turmoil caused by accusations against Dr. Earl O. Harding, executive secretary of the convention. The charges dealt mainly with the overspending of Baptist funds and were brought by Dr. Tom Anderson, mayor and Baptist lay leader in Columbia, and the Rev. James W. Hackney, pastor of Maplewood Baptist Church, formerly of Sikeston, and immediate past chairman of the executive committee. The Rev. Mr. Hackney was removed from office at the request of the other 12 committee members.

The Missouri Baptist Convention is in session three days annually, at which time 51 members are elected to the executive board, the governing body which meets quarterly. The chairman of the board then appoints an executive committee, consisting of 13 members who meet monthly or whenever it is deemed necessary., which Ford will chair.

In response to the controversy regarding Dr. Harding, Ford emphatically stated that both the board and the committee have been informed and advised of the accusations and have found them to be unwarranted and without foundation.

Ford considers them to be personal attacks against the very structure of the convention. He stated, "Dr. Harding is employed and responsible to the executive board. He has served in this capacity for almost 20 years and has fulfilled his duties to the board's complete confidence."

Ford also remarked that although the records are audited annually by an independent firm, Dr. Harding has requested that another audit for the years 1970, 1971 and 1972 be made. Ford feels this action is unnecessary but to end the controversy has appointed a committee to select another independent auditing firm and has requested that this selection and the auditing be expedited.

In the past, Ford has also served as legal advisor to the executive committee and later was appointed a member.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON
By Dr. William H. Taft

FOR JUNE 3, 1973

Scripture: Exodus 20:1-2; Deuteronomy 5:32--6:3; Psalms 119:97-104; Matthew 5:17; Mark 12:12-17

WHY HAVE LAW?

For the summer months we will study God's laws for men, with the emphasis on ways these centuries-old rules apply to today's world.

Many persons today like to say that the Ten Commandments are not valid in our present society. Why they believe this is difficult to comprehend.

Some persons will claim that the Commandments have been replaced by the principle of love, a term difficult to always understand. Others will feel the Commandments are too simple for today's complex world.

In these upcoming lessons we will seek to probe the inner moral structure of men and their feelings.

Impatience is a term applied to many views on today's laws. People feel the laws aren't being interpreted properly by the highest courts. Others feel they are being viewed in a too narrow manner.

Nevertheless, the place of law in our lives today is being challenged. Even the churches are getting involved with the courts in both external and internal disputes.

Our daily newspapers report violations of the laws. Our television screens show us examples of individuals who interpret the laws in their own ways.

Henry Thoreau years ago refused to pay the poll tax. He felt the state did not possess the right to so tax a person. Today there are others who refuse to pay taxes, objecting to the use of such funds for war purposes.

Bible readers reviewing today's Scriptures might be surprised to read how the early believers of God voiced their love for the law. Here they were concerned with religious traditions, the teachings of God, and the interpretations of truth.

The persons were concerned about the commandments, testimonies, precepts, and ordinances. No doubt they recognized that with good laws society would run more smoothly and equitably.

The Bible records numerous examples of incidents when persons violated God's laws. First there were Adam and Eve and their disobedience of God's warning to them.

God's laws are basic in our lives today. If we really believe in Him we believe in everything He tells us. God intervenes in our lives under one condition: we invite Him to participate.

Early in our Bible studies we learn how God becomes involved in international affairs. The Egyptians were the strongest people in the world at one time yet God brought about their downfall.

Man needs an ultimate authority just as he needs traffic lights to carry him to work and home again safely.

God created this world. And as it becomes more and more crowded it becomes more necessary for a system of laws we can all follow and agree with. Such laws are required to provide a framework for living.

And there is no better time for God to intervene again than the present. Although one major war may be ended, peace is still far away for millions of us.

God is a teacher. Much of our time is spent in listening to what we are told to think, to do, to buy, and to believe.

Unfortunately, we don't always listen to the right sources. We are pressured by political leaders, by our advertisements, by our friends and neighbors.

Christ kept the law. He was the only one to achieve this distinction. From the New Testament we learn that "Love does no wrong to a neighbor: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law."

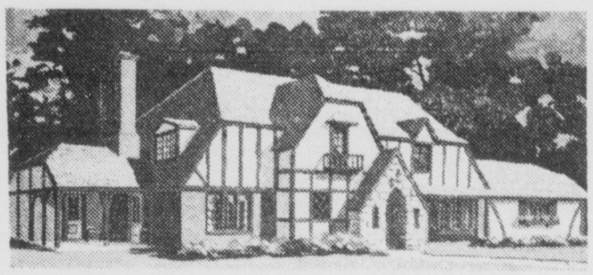
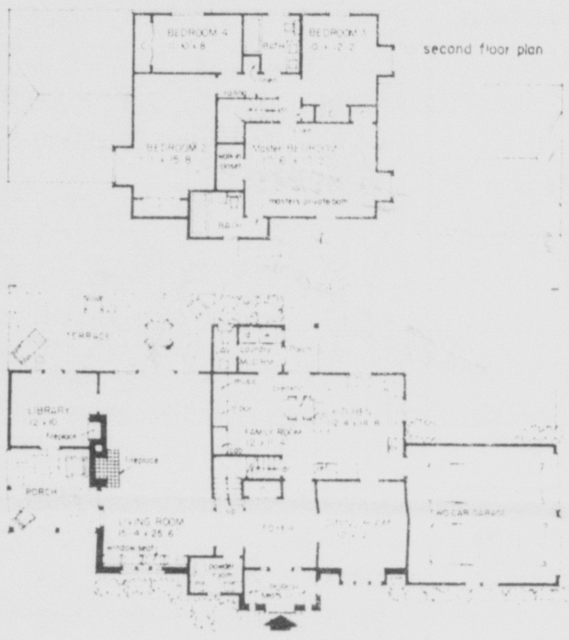
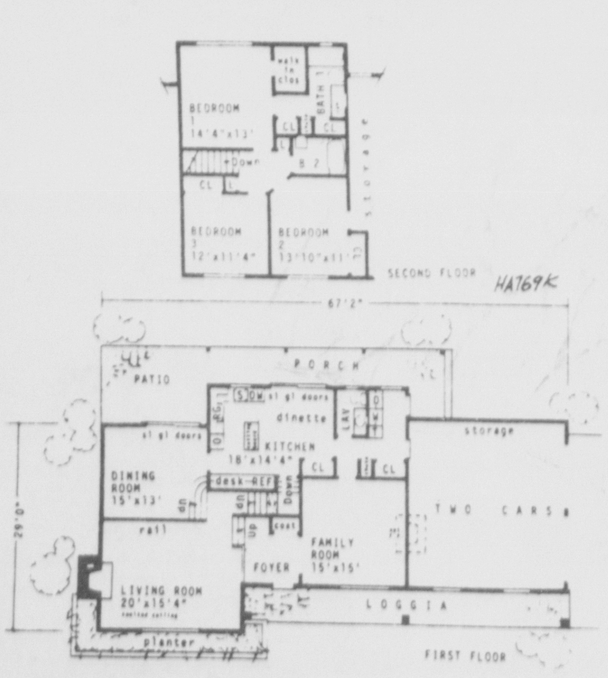
HOMES FOR AMERICANS





ENGLISH TUDOR is another of the old world types of architecture which has found a renewed popularity in the last three years. The exterior is a true representation of dignified, middle-class English. Because of its modest size it cannot support the flamboyant details of a large manor house but because of its stateliness it would always be envied in a neighborhood. Inside, a huge foyer presents a wonderful guest greeting spot as well as controlling traffic well. The big living room has three-sided exposure and entrances to the porch, library and rear terrace. It also has an 11-foot-long window seat, typical of the English design. The kitchen-family room is another luxury-size space, more than 24 feet. The second floor has all four bedrooms and two baths. Anyone interested in the cost of the blueprint of Plan HA755M can write to architect Rudolph A. Matern, 89 E. Jericho Turnpike, Mineola, N.Y. 11501.



FEATURED in this two-story home are multi-level assets of dropped dining room with the living room overlooking it and sharing the patio view to the back. Kitchen and utility area open to a rear porch and a family room is at the front. Three bedrooms and two baths have 740 square feet on the upper floor. Plan HA769K has 1,235 square feet on the main level and is designed by architect Derick Kipp, Room 505, 48 W. 48th St., New York, N.Y. 10036. Anyone interested in learning the cost of the blueprint can write to Kipp.

Shotgun used as entry

NEW MADRID— Ruby Stewart's Store, three miles north of Point Pleasant was burglarized Tuesday night by persons who used a shotgun to shoot a front door and window open, according to Deputy Sheriff Bo Wingo, who investigated. A soft drink machine outside the store also was shot into.

Items reported stolen were whisky, cigarettes, several pairs of women's boots, some housecoats and a carton of bubble gum. Money in a cash register was not bothered, Wingo said.

Mrs. Stewart's store was burglarized in April and three youths were arrested when some of the loot was discovered in their car after it crashed into the yard of Jack Gaddis in Point Pleasant. Gaddis is Mrs. Stewart's son.

Requalification of Ozark pilots could delay flight resumption

ST. LOUIS (AP) — "The longer the strike continues the more time it will take to get the fleet back into the air," said Calvin E. Ettel, an official of the Airline Pilots Association, which represents the 341 pilots of the strikebound Ozark Air Lines.

Although officials of both Ozark and the Aircraft Mechanics Fraternal Association, which went on strike 44 days ago, said planes could be mechanically ready for flight within no more than four days after the dispute is settled, Ettel said Thursday that requalification of pilots could extend that period to as long as two weeks.

The longer the pilots are away from flying, he said, the more retraining they will need to requalify under current experience requirements.

"A lengthy strike would work a hardship on the company as well as everyone else," he said. Negotiations between the airline and the 560-member mechanics union resumed earlier this week in the nation's capital, but there has been no indication that a settlement is in sight.

Sam Smith, president of Local 24 of the AMFA, said his members are ready for a long strike, even though the union has no strike fund to help the men make ends meet while they are off the job.

"You're not as prone to go off half-cocked," Smith said of the union's policy, adding that with no strike fund the issues have to be important before a strike is called. The dispute centers around wages, pension benefits and the use of closed circuit television in the airline's St. Louis hangar complex.

"I was aware this (the strike) would happen six to eight months before," said George Cook, one of the mechanics, "so I had been putting money in my back pocket for quite a while."

Cook said he is supporting his pregnant wife and three children on his savings, but he said many of the union members have gotten jobs.

One of them is Ian Brown, who has been an Ozark mechanic for six years. He said he got a job in the general contracting industry.

"You'd be surprised the number of guys who have gotten part-time jobs—about 80 per cent," Brown said. He saved some money before the strike, he said, and is using the parttime job to supplement his savings.

"The jobs aren't paying what we normally make, but it's enough to pay for the groceries," he said, adding, "I'm willing to stay out until I get an equitable agreement."

In the case of pilots, Ozark proposed the resumption of limited service Wednesday to some of the cities that depend solely on the airline for air transportation.

The pilots association was seeking more information on the proposal Thursday before deciding whether to agree to it. But even if a limited number of flights are resumed, only a few of the 341 pilots will be involved.

For the rest, Ettel said many have gotten part-time jobs and others are doing a lot of work around their homes.

"If I ever see a paint brush again, it will be too soon," Ettel said, noting that none of the pilots is seeking employment with another airline.

"We're in a unique position; we've pleged ourselves to this specific company," he said, explaining that to fly for another airline, a pilot would have to start from the bottom, losing all his seniority.

"It's kind of a hapless position right now," he conceded.

In an effort to pressure management and the mechanics into a settlement, Ettel said 22 pilots have begun visiting some of the 62 communities served by Ozark in 15 states, asking the residents to write the airline and union executives urging a resolution to the dispute.

For the company itself, losses due to the strike have been somewhat minimized because of a mutual aid pact between the major airlines.

The mutual aid assistance fund reportedly provided Ozark with $1,263,989 in the first 14 days of the strike, based on 50 per cent of its operating expenses. The fund also provides reimbursement for up to 35 per cent of operating costs after 28 days of the strike.

What's the Law?

The case of the amazing wife

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

During the many awed years that Marvin and Cynthia were married, they continually fought the battle of the budget. And since Cynthia had no money or income of her own, she was solely dependent upon Marvin's generosity in running the home.

Nevertheless, Marvin discovered that his amazing wife had managed to purchase two income- producing parcels of property. And when he demanded to know where she had gotten the loot to do it, she clammed up and refused to part with nary a syllable of explanation.

Grabbing a pencil and his cancelled checks, frustrated Marvin quickly ascertained that during their marriage, he had given Cynthia more than $100,000 to run their home. And racing to court, he demanded that she be ordered to explain how she had spent every last penny of the household money he had given her.

"If Cynthia bought those properties out of household savings," he told the judge, "the properties belong to me since it was my money that bought them."

"That's absurd," was wife Cynthia's answer. "We've been married a long time. How am I expected to remember how I spent that money? After all, I was a housewife and not an accountant."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you require the amazing wife to account for how she had spent the household money?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that while it is doubtful that any man would have the temerity to contend that he is entitled to the full benefit of his wife's thrift and economy, probably at no small sacrifice to herself, the law says he does. Money given to a wife to run a household, noted the judge, is not a gift nor is it compensation to her for performing her wifely duties. Any such money left over belongs to her husband. Therefore, concluded the judge; Cynthia must account since, if she bought the properties out of household savings, the properties would belong to her husband. Supervisors for Arvin plant in Dexter announced

DEXTER — Selection of five key supervisory employes for the new plant to be established in Dexter by Arvin Industries was announced this week by T. I. Sparks, plant manager.

The five men, and others who will be added later, will comprise the staff responsible for getting the new facility in operation.

A native of Lafayette, Ind., Mills is a graduate of Indiana State University, where he also did graduate work. Prior to joining Arvin's personnel department at Seymour in 1966, he taught school for two years in Fort Wayne. He became employment manager at Seymour in 1967 and came to North Vernon as personnel manager two years later.

Mills and his wife Margie are members of the First United Methodist church in North Vernon, where he is a trustee. Mills is immediate past president of United Fund and a member of the Chamber of Commerce.

A graduate of Jeffersonville, (Ind.) High School, Abbott holds a bachelor of science degree in production management and industrial engineering from Indiana University. Since joining Arvin in 1963, he has served as industrial engineer, night superintendent and chief industrial engineer at the Franklin plant.

Abbott and his wife Donna have one daughter. They are members of the Lutheran church, and he also belongs to the Rotary Club.

Born in Columbus, Collins graduated from high school there and holds a degree in industrial management from Purdue University. He worked at Arvin five summers while in school and rejoined the company upon graduation in 1971. He has worked in both cost analysis and industrial engineering. He also served in the Army for three years.

Collins' wife, Mary Lynn, is a graduate of Ball State University and has been teaching in the Columbus school system.

Yoder is a graduate of Muncie, (Ind.) Central High School, holds a degree in business administration from Ball State University. Prior to joining Arvin at Greenwood as an industrial engineer in 1968, he was employed as an industrial engineer with Westinghouse Electric Corp.

Yoder's wife, Glenna, also attended Ball State University and has worked as a librarian in Greenwood. They have two daughters in grade school.

McClure is a graduate of Indiana State University and also attended Rose- Hulman Institute, Indiana University law school and Portland State University. His wife Judith, a graduate of Ball State, has been a school teacher. They have one young son.

Before joining Arvin as quality foreman at Seymour in 1971, McClure served three years in the Army as a first lieutenant, and had been employed with Allison division of General Motors in Indianapolis and Anodizing, Inc. in Portland, Ore.

Sparks announced that members of the supervisory group and their families will move to Dexter during the summer. The plant is scheduled to begin operations late this year.

Skylab pilots sleep late

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Like most anyone on a day off, Skylab's astronauts slept late in their orbiting station today. They looked forward to the luxury of man's first space shower after a week of work in the warm laboratory.

They slept nearly three hours past their normal wakeup time and once they were up and around they had little to say to Mission Control of the first leisure day ever enjoyed by men in space.

It is one of three free days planned during the 28-day mission by Charles Conrad Jr., Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin and Paul J. Weitz.

Experiments are suspended for the day. Unless there is an emergency, mission control will leave them alone, except for relaying routine messages.

Experts on the ground will continue to troubleshoot Skylab's power shortage, working on procedures for one of the astronauts to take a space walk to release a stuck solar panel.

Commander Conrad hinted Thursday night there may be at least some chores to do.

"It'll be more like a field day," he radioed. "We've got an awful lot of housekeeping to do. Things are scattered all over the place, so we'll spend some time cleaning house."

Conrad said he hoped to play orbiting tourist and snap some pictures from the window during the day. He asked the control center for the map coordinates of Egypt's pyramids and African Mt. Kilimanjaro.

One thing they're looking forward to is the shower, scheduled for late afternoon. Each will lather himself, step behind a circular plastic shower curtain and use a hand-held device to spray himself with about two quarts of water.

In the weightless environment of the space station, the water droplets were expected to cling to the curtain and the astronauts. The spacemen will suck them up with a hand-operated vacuum cleaner.

Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz have worked in 80-degree plus temperatures since boarding the station a week ago and have reported they are somewhat sweaty.

"The shower will be very welcome," Kerwin said.

Flight controller Don Puddy said the temperatures now are expected to stabilize at about 80 degrees in two or three days. They were as high as 125 degrees until the astronauts raised a makeshift sun shade to protect an exposed section of the laboratory from the blistering rays of the sun.

Conrad talked of the scheduled free time in a preflight interview.

Johnston, his brother, Bryan Johnston, and Carol Scott had driven up in front of the Johnston home when Zook approached in his car. Zook reportedly said he was going to kill the Johnstons, opened his car door and pointed the shotgun toward them. Johnston took a .22 rifle from the car and fired several shots at Zook's car, one of which struck Zook.

Johnston was arrested by East Prairie police officers Lyle Scott and Jim McAfee at the scene.

State, U. S. officials assessing damages

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — State and federal officials are assessing the damage from flash flooding in southeast Missouri last weekend, a spokesman for Gov. Christopher S. Bond said Thursday.

Working on the damage estimates for southern Bollinger County, northern Stoddard County, Cape Girardeau County and Scott County are officials of the U.S. Office of Emergency Preparedness, the state adjutant general's office and state Highway Department officials as well as county officials.

Bond said he expects to receive a report on the damage next week.

House-Senate committee compromise

$75,000 cut from budget

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Shortly before 2 a. m. Friday, the joint House-Senate appropriations conference committee approved the third bill since negotiations on the state's budget began Wednesday.

The 10-member conference committee was deadlocked for most of Thursday on $10,000 for operating the governor's mansion, and cuts the House members wanted in the Office of Administration.

Finally both sides agreed to give Gov. Christopher S. Bond $40,000 to operate the mansion in return for cutting $75,000 from salaries in the Office of Administration. The cut leaves $2.29 million for salaries and an appropriation of $3.4 million.

Funds for administering merit system employes in the Office of Administration were not cut.

Included in the bargain was $28,000 restored to the budget of the state auditor making that total appropriation $1,233,177.

Everything else in the $700 million appropriations bill covering spending by the executive branch and elected state officials was agreed on with little difficulty after funds for the Department of Revenue were resolved.

The committee cut $70,000 from the $88.3 million revenue budget. But they granted a 5 per cent salary raise for all employes plus an additional 5 per cent for some supervisors and auditors.

After approving the revenue funds Thursday afternoon, the committee appropriated $500,000 for National Guard salaries to cover the cost of their duty in the event of further flooding.

The committee cut $100,000 from the state Tourism Commission budget for advertising leaving them an appropriation of $694,338.

They cut funds for the Council on the Arts to $654,920, after the House had approved about $1.2 million and the governor recommended $1.3 million.

The committee also agreed to appropriate $1.7 million for the public defender system with $430,000 of that amount to be held in a contingency to cover anticipated errors in the estimated costs submitted by circuit judges from all over the state.

The committee still has four appropriations bills to negotiate, including the capital improvements bill yet to be heard by the Senate Appropriations Committee and approved by the Senate.

The total figure for all appropriations is about $2 billion.

With the exception of the capital improvements bill, the legislature must send the other appropriations bills to the governor by midnight June 8, next Friday.

The Senate Appropriations Committee will begin hearings on the improvements bill today.

The conference committee is set to resume bargaining at 1 p. m. Saturday.

Watergate testimony conflicts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of the present and former top officials in government are telling very different stories about their mutual connections with the Watergate scandal.

And Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, says he has read secret White House documents that disclose a "Gestapo mentality" existed at the highest levels of the Nixon administration.

Ervin's comments at a news conference in Winston-Salem, N.C., Thursday were the strongest he has made about the explosive issues uncovered by the broadening Watergate investigation.

The top-secret papers he was discussing surfaced when fired White House Counsel John W. Dean III told a federal judge he had taken them from the White House.The judge gave the North Carolina senator a copy. They are a blueprint for domestic espionage, but President Nixon said the plan was never implemented because the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, objected to it.

"It would be a great shock to the American people" if the contents of the papers are made public, Ervin said, adding that he plans to ask the nation's intelligence agencies for their recommendations regarding release of the documents.

The Watergate committee chairman, a Democrat, said the papers detail White House plans to set up "an interagency operation to spy on Americans, especially those who disagreed with the administration."

Since the disclosure several weeks ago that the Central Intelligence Agency may have been pressed into Watergate-related service, a number of congressional watchdog committees have launched separate, secret inquiries into the activities of America's official espionage agency.

The resulting testimony has pitted former top White House aides against the highest echelons of the CIA and FBI.

As related by some of the officials themselves and by members of various committees, here are some of the conflicts that have shown up in recent sworn testimony behind closed doors:

—Gen. Robert E. Cushman Jr., former deputy director of the CIA and now commandant of the Marine Corps, said that John D. Ehrlichman asked him by phone on July 8, 1971, for CIA assistance to E. Howard Hunt, since convicted in the Watergate conspiracy.

Ehrlichman, then President Nixon's domestic-affairs adviser, said he never made the request, told Cushman so and the general deleted his name from a memo recounting the incident. Cushman said Thursday that he has since checked his records and reaffirmed that Ehrlichman was the caller, adding: "I do not regard Mr. Ehrlichman's position and mine as being necessarily contradictory."

—Ehrlichman, presidential chief of staff H.R. Haldeman, CIA Director Richard Helms and Helms's deputy, Army Lt. Gen. Vernon A. Walters, met at the White House on June 23, 1972, to discuss the CIA and the break-in six days earlier at Democratic headquarters in the Watergate.

Helms and Walters said the CIA wasn't involved in Watergate and the FBI's investigation of the incident wouldn't hurt the agency or compromise any of its other covert activities.

Walters said the White House officials, since resigned, sent him to see acting FBI Director L. Patrick Gray III to tell Gray the FBI's Watergate-related investigation of a Mexican money deal could jeopardize CIA operations.

Ehrlichman said Helms and Walters didn't give "a flat assurance" that the CIA wouldn't be hurt by the FBI probe.

Haldeman said there was "no intent or desire to impede or cover up any aspect of the Watergate investigation itself."

—Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., chairman of one of the subcommittees looking into the matter, said Haldeman and Ehrlichman were in substantial agreement with each other but their accounts were in "serious conflict" with the Helms, Walters and Gray versions of the White House meeting and subsequent Gray-Walters encounter.

—McClellan's counterpart on the other side of Congress, Rep. Lucien D. Nedzi, D-Mich., said: "We have two versions under oath that are not consistent." He called for a Justice Department review of the testimony, which could lead to filing of perjury charges against one or more of the congressional witnesses.

—Both Ehrlichman and Haldeman blamed Dean for reported efforts to get the CIA involved in the scandal. Dean has said a move is under way to discredit him before his testimony exposes other top people involved.
